He was a pensioned Sergeant of Marines.

BLOWN OUT.

As a result of the meeting of the iron masters of West Scotland many furnaces in Lanarkshire were blown out. The strike is spreading to Ayrshire. Considerable inconvenience is being felt in consequence of scarcity of coals. Several traders between Greenock and Quebec have been obliged to sail with ballast instead of coal.

Ireland.

LONDON, August 18.—During a riot at Dungannon Sunday, many police were wounded. Their ranks were several times broken. They finally fired buckshot into the crowd. The firing was returned from revolvers, and showers of stones fell, many of the rioters almost rushing on the points of the bayonets in the eagerness of the attack. The police then fired a volley of ball cartridges, and many persons were wounded. One man had the side of his head riddled with buckshot and received a bullet in his abdomen, from the effects of which he died shortly after.

At Down Patrick, in a fight between Catholics and Orangemen, fire arms were used incessantly from 11 Sunday evening until 3 Monday morning. Several persons were severely wounded.

A FOUL PLOT.

CORK, August 18.—A plot to blow up the Cork barracks has been discovered and frustrated. The military commander received private information of the plot and caused a search to be made of the tunnel of the Great Southern and Western Railway leading into the city of Cork. Two barrels of gunpowder were found in that portion of the tunnel running under the barracks. A large number of troops were immediately put under arms and the neighborhood scoured, but nothing further was found. The guards are now doubled, and armed parties are patroling outside the barracks.

THE BELFAST RIOTS.

A hearing in the case of parties arrested for participating in the bloody riots at Belfast on Sunday showed that the Orangemen were at fault, and were responsible for the difficulty. Thirty Catholics were wounded, of whom two have since died. There is much excitement in the community, and both sides are exceedingly bitter. Further collisions are apprehended. The funeral of Dan Kirwin took place to-day, and was an immense and imposing demonstration. A large body of Catholics from Wexford was in attendance.

A Quettah dispatch says the enemies' force in the attack on the garrison at Kuch Sunday night, is estimated at 2,000. Their loss is 200 killed, instead of eighty, as previously reported. The Campaign in Indiana.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

INDIANAPOLSS, August 18.—The opening of the Democratic campaign last Saturday has roused the forces, and there will be no cessation in what is recognized as a hard fight from now until election day. Arrangements are making for two grand rallies in every one of the ninety-two counties in the State during September. One speaker of national reputation from outside the State will be assigned to each of the thirteen Congressional districts and will speak twice in each county of the district. Home talent will carry on the war at the cross roads. Senator Thurman will follow Conkling in his appointments in this States speaking in each place where the New York Senator speaks.

Working Girls and Woman.

NEW YORK, August 18.—Dr. Roger Tracey, one of the Sanitary Inspectors, has submitted to the Board of Health a voluminous report of his efforts to ascertain, in obedience to the directions of the Board, the influence of long continued standing on the health of girls and young women employed in stores. He did not find his work satisfactory, as the girls and saleswomen and their parents whom he talked with treated his inquiries with scorn and ridicule. The employers, when spoken to personally, attributed the pale faces and weary manners to dissipation and bad food. No one paid any attention to the Inspector's circular.

Ways that Are Dark.

CINCINNATI, August 18.—Char Lee, a Chinaman, is in jail for an ingenious swindle on two brother Mongolians. He procured a rough chunk of brass weighing twenty-six pounds, discolored the edges with gold and represented it as a huge lump of bullion which had been stolen and could not be disposed of in this country without great risk. The two purchased it for $2,000, expecting to clear about $8,000 by snipping it to China. Before clinching the bargain they had a piece knocked off for assay, and Char Lee was careful that they got a doctored knob that would stand the test.

Destitute.

Among the cases of extreme destitution reported during the past few days is that of Mrs. Peravi, a Swede. The poor woman with three small children occupies a scantily furnished room in the second story of No. 1225 North Fifth street. Yesterday her husband, who was injured some weeks ago while at work, died of lockjaw and was buried at the city's expense from the City Hospital. The poor woman has exhausted every means of raising money with which to purchase the necessaries of life, and is now in a delicate state of health. She is well worthy of any aid that can be given her.

The First Victim.

Jas. McCausland, a teamster, fell from his wagon on Second and Vine streets this morning. The police brought him to the Dispensary, where he was well cooled off with ice water and sent home to 2408 Howard street.

ANOTHER FIASCO.

Yesterday's Failure at Chicago Repeated To-Day.

General Disgust Over the Drill of the Competing Commanderies.

CHICAGO, August 18.—The day for the competitive drill opened clear and pleasant, but growing uncomfortably warm as the day advances. The same weak features that characterized the handling of the procession yesterday have already made themselves apparent in the management of the drill exercises to-day. Thousands of people were at the Jockey Park at an early hour, and in the absence of ticket-sellers, gate-keepers, police or anybody in authority they had their choice of seats. The attendance is enormous. The drill was announced to begin at 9:30, but at that hour not one of

THE COMPETING COMMANDERIES

was on the ground. The following commanderies are down for the contest: Ivanhoe Mounted, St. Louis; Demola Mounted, Grand Rapids, Michigan; Monroe, Rochester, New York; Damascus, St. Paul; Raper, Indianapolis; Oriental, Cleveland, Demola, Louisville, Reed, Dayton, Ohio, and Bayard, Stillwater, Minnesota. All these bodies presented a fine appearance, and as they appeared on the enclosed grounds of the Jockey Club Park, where the drill occurs, they were received with cheers.

Last evening Freeman T. Gross, a man of bad reputation, who had been on a spree, shot and instantly killed Michael Fleming, a boilermaker. Fleming interfered to protect the family of Gross from abuse. The latter claims that he acted in self-defense.

CORONER'S CASES.

Five Sudden and Mysterious Deaths Investigated To-Day.

An unknown man spent last night at the boarding-house No. 513 Biddle street. At 5:30 this morning he went out into the yard and dropped dead. He was a man about forty-five years of age and had been working upon the Government dyke. The inquest developed the fact that death was caused by congestion of the lungs. The body is at the Morgue.

MENINGITIS.

An inquest was held upon the body of Richard O'Reilly, aged one year, at 1018 Market street this morning, and the fact learned that the child had died of cerebral spinal meningitis. It was thought that a fall the little one had on August 5th was responsible for the death, but such was not the opinion of Dr. Auler.

AUGUST DELARWIERE.

An inquest was held on the body of August Delarwiere, who died in the City Hospital yesterday, and a verdict returned that traumatic erysipelas was the cause of death.

JOHN KADLATZ.

The coroner held an inquest on the body of John Kadlatz, who was found dead in the alley between Eighth and Ninth and Park avenue and Rutger streets. The deceased was seventy-five years of age, and the verdict was death from congestion of the lungs.

DISEASE OF THE HEART.

Matthais Bothish, a poor old Bohemian, while gathering wood in the yard of the Iron Mountain Railroad near Lesperance street this morning died suddenly of valvular disease of the heart. He was fifty years of age, and lived with his wife at 1910 Carondelet avenue.

THE SECOND DAY.

How the Buehler Inquest Drags its Slow Length Along.

The inquest on the body of Joseph Buehler, which was begun yesterday, reached its second sitting to-day. It will be remembered that Joseph Buehler was driver of a wagon used in carting excursionists to and from Bamberger's Grove on Sunday last. Buehler was knocked off the wagon, run over and killed, and now the question of the hour is, Who did it? Everybody, however, in the wagon appears to have been in so befuddled a condition that it is not probable that the mystery ever will be solved. It was quite dark at the time of the murder and so many people were about the wagon that those whose heads were clear enough to tell a connected story about the affair could not see the row plainly and could not identify the prisoners.

Thomas Walsh was the first witness called this evening and his evidence did not tend to throw any material new light on the puzzle. Mr. Frank O'Neil, the Deputy Coroner, thinks it is very unlikely that the perpetrators of this crime will ever be punished, because, while there is very little doubt as to who did the killing, it will be next to impossible even to make a case.

Court of Criminal Correction.

Charles Bray was discharged on a charge of assault to do great bodily harm to Charles Kratz.

Edward Murphy pleaded guilty to an attempted larceny, and got three months on the rock-pile.

George Robinson was discharged for want of prosecution on a charge of assault to kill Benj. Pauley.

John Candy tried the other tack and pleaded not guilty to assault and battery; tried and sent down for three months.

George Cole, charged with an assault and battery upon Bettie Cole, was honored with a nolle pros. by Mr. Hogan this morning.

City Hall Notes.

The number of burial permits at three o'clock to-day was fifteen.

The employes of the City Hall have quit addition and divisions, and largely run towards fanning and silence.

Mr. F. F. Espenschied, the Mayor's private secretary, has returned from his bridal trip and reappeared at his desk to-day.

The Supply Commissioner will open bids for supplying the harbor boat with wheel arms and bucket planks, to-day, at 4. p. m.

The Dispensary is getting in order for a torrid spell. The heat for the last few days is just about hot enough to produce a sunstroke season of considerable magnitude.

For Beating a Boy.

Charles Fischer was arraigned before Judge Dennison this morning on two charges of disturbing the peace. The facts brought out at the trial showed that Fischer brutally beat a little boy, and when the child's mother, who resides at Twelfth and Biddle streets, attempted to interfere in the boy's behalf, he struck her in the face, blackening one of her eyes. The boy's nose is supposed to be broken. He was also kicked about the body and his face cut by a blow. One case against the defendant was nolle pros'ed, and he was fined $15 in the other. Being unable to pay the fine, he was sent to the Work-house.

PUGILISTIC POLICE.

How Three Patrolmen Pounded John Spellman and What Came of It.

John Spellman came before Justice M. J. Mullery this morning in a very badly dilapidated condition, and in possession of a first-class tale of woe which he proceeded to unfold. Last evening, somewhere near the corner of Eighth and Biddle streets, his son got into collision with the police, and Spellman alleges that while peaceably remonstrating he was set upon by three policemen, who pounded him until they were tired. He alleges that a sling-shot was frequently and forcibly used upon him, and points to a large gash in the top of his head as a proof of this fact.

Spellman swore out a warrant this morning charging assault and battery against James Barry, Richard Snow and Thomas Tierney, all officers stationed in the Third Police District. The officers gave bond in the sum of $100 each to appear for trial on the 28th of August. Spellman paid a visit to the Dispensary, where his wounds were attended.

THE CERRE STREET MURDER.

Coroner Auler Holds an Inquest on the Body of William Johnson.

Henry Siefert Tells How the Killing Was Done.

At 3 o'clock to-day Coroner Auler entered on the inquest over the body of Wm. Johnson, the man who was shot last night on the corner of Fifth and Cerre streets. The murdered man has been brought up to the Morgue, where his remains are now lying, and it took a long time to swear in the witnesses and find the jurymen. As the Buehler inquest was being held in the Coroner's office, this one was held in the First District Police Court.

SIEFERT'S OWN STORY of the killing is as follows, and this is corroborated by several witnesses:

"I am a blacksmith and work for Haydock, on Chouteau avenue. I have a room at 516 Myrtle street. I worked all day to-day, and after we quit this evening I walked up Fourth street with Martin Head, Chris. Daemer, and another fellow, I forget his name (afterward learned to have been a young man named Cottell). As we reached Johnson's saloon, I saw Johnson and the lame barkeeper sitting in there, and as I didn't want to meet them I crossed the street. The reason I didn't want to meet them was that I had a difficulty in that saloon the day before. Several of us were in the saloon yesterday afternoon having a good time, when John Scott, one of our number, quarreled with the barkeeper about the bill. Johnson wasn't there at all. The lame man pulled a revolver and

THREATENED TO SHOOT US

all if we didn't get out of the house. He called me a ———— and told me to get out and snapped his pistol at me. I got out my pistol and fired one shot, but not at him, although I made him believe I did. I just shot to scare him. When we went by the saloon this evening and I saw the barkeeper and Johnson sitting there, I thought there might be trouble, and I crossed over the street on purpose to avoid them. Johnson called me a son ———, and shook his fist at me, but I told him that I didn't want to have any fuss. I kept on and my friends crossed the street with me. We kept on along Fourth street till we reached Cerre and then turned up Cerre. I was going to my room at 516 Myrtle street. When we reached the corner, I stopped to see Andy Melvin, who rooms over Price's grocery. While we were waiting for him to come down one of the boys said: 'Here he comes now.' I looked around and there was Johnson with his right hand in his pants pocket. I watched him as he slowly pulled it out. I thought it was a knife, and if it was I knew I was all right. I saw a pistol come out instead of a knife, and as quick as thought I pointed my self-cocker at him and pulled the trigger three times. It was

A CASE OF SELF-DEFENSE,

and if I hadn't been too quick for him, he would have shot me sure. I walked up Fifth street then, and was jumped onto by a crowd of men who thought I was trying to run away. I didn't want to escape from being arrested, although I wanted to get away from those men because they acted like they and the crowd there would lynch me. I never had a conversation in my life with Johnson; never knew him to speak to him, although I knew him by sight, and I don't know that I ever spoke to him till to-day."

There is not much probability of a verdict before a late hour this evening, as a number of witnesses are to be examined.

New Warrants.

Several new warrants were issued to-day, principally one charging Jacob Cook with culpable negligence in shooting Tilda Greef, Ellen Holmes with petit larceny, Frederick King with petit larceny and Hugh J. Malloy with assault to kill.

City Treasury Receipts.

The amount paid in to-day was $9,972 88 from the following sources: Collector Rosenblatt sent in $1,569 76 on account of licenses, and $8,309 68 on account of taxes; Recorder Irwin paid in $42 30; the Inspector of Weights and Measures, $44 20, and the Park Commissioner, $7.

First District Police Court.

Judge Jecko had a very light docket this morning, but fifteen cases coming up, all of which were continued or dismissed, except two. Sarah Thomas was fined $10 for disturbing the peace, and Julia Schlieker paid costs for the same offense.

Hurt at the Fire.

Thomas Kelly, living at Sixteenth and Market, who went out to see the fire, was struck by a flying missile just above the right eye, inflicting a terrible gash. Dr. Robinson attended his injuries at the Dispensary.

The First Ward Hancock and English Invincible Club are working vigorously to uniform the club for a grand procession and rally to take place soon. They deserve great credit for the energy they have so far displayed and merit every success. The club now numbers about sixty-five active members.

GREEN, the moke who was arrested some time ago for an unnatural crime, and who has lain for six months in jail waiting for a trial, was removed to the City Hospital to-day.

SOMEHOW OR OTHER.

Life has a burden for every man's shoulder,
None may escape from its trouble and care;
Miss it in youth, and 'twill come when we're older,
And fit us as close as the garments we wear.

Sorrow comes into our lives uninvited,
Robbing our hearts of their treasures of song;
Lovers grow cold and friendships are slighted,
Yet somehow or other we worry along.

Every-day toil is every-day blessing,
Though poverty's cottage and crust we may share;
Weak is the back on which burdens are pressing,
But stout is the heart that is strengthened by prayer.

Somehow or other the pathway grows brighter,
Just when we mourn there are none to befriend;
Hope in the heart makes the burden seem lighter,
And somehow or other, we get to the end.

SARA JEWETT.

MME. SKOBELEFF'S DEATH.

Atrocious Ingratitude and Treachery of a Young Russian Officer.

[From the London Telegraph.]

The following details of Mme. Skobeleff's assassination by Capt. Uzatis have reached Vienna from Philippopolis: Mme. Skobeleff, during her two months' stay in Bulgaria had devoted her time, money and energies to the development of benevolent institutions in different parts of the Principality, and had made numerous excursions with that object, refusing the escort of Gendarmerie offered to her by the local authorities, on the ground that she was too well known throughout the country to run any risk of molestation. During these expeditions she was only accompanied by a young female attendant, by a faithful and intelligent Russian man-servant named Ivanoff, and by Capt. Uzatis, formerly her son's aide-de-camp, who had earned great distinctions by his splendid gallantry during the late war, and whom she was accustomed to address as 'her son.' To this young officer she had upon several occasions presented considerable sums of money for the purpose of enabling one of his brothers, a civil engineer, to erect a mill in Demendere, a village near Philippopolis, but had recently refused an application on his part for a further gift, holding out, however, hopes that she might grant the asked-for subsidy at some future period.

Mme. Skobeleff had set her heart upon establishing a model farm in East Roumelia, and started by carriage from Philippopolis for Tchirpan on Sunday, July 18, with the object of purchasing a piece of land suitable to the fulfillment of her project, taking with her 25,000 roubles, which Captain Uzatis assisted her to pack up in a valise. This money was destined to pay for her purchase. To avoid the intolerable heat of the summer's sun, she commenced her journey at 9 p. m., accompanied by her usual attendants, with the exception of Uzatis, who excused himself, alleging indisposition and the necessity of remaining with his brother, who was also on the eve of departure from Philippopolis. For about half an hour's drive, after quitting the town, Mme. Skobeleff's carriage was closely followed by a vehicle containing Mlle. Smolekoff, the Directress of the Philippopolis Hospital, and a Russian officer named Petroff: but the two carriages separated at Kemer, close to a stone bridge over the Maritza, on the road to Adrianople. Mme. Skobeleff's carriage had proceeded a few hundred yards further, when Ivanoff, who was seated on the box by the coachman, espied Capt. Uzatis a little distance off by the roadside, and, turning round toward his mistress, who, in the meantime, had fallen into a doze, awoke her with the announcement that the Captain was approaching the carriage on foot. The old lady ordered the coachman to stop, and, leaning out of the window, was expressing her thanks to Uzatis for the trouble he had taken to wish her good-speed on her journey, when he suddenly drew his hand-jar and cut Ivanoff down. At the same moment four armed men made their appearance and fell upon the attendants with their yataghans. While they wer slaughtering the Bulgarian driver and Mme. Skobeleff's maid—upon the former of whom they inflicted fourteen wounds, and upon the latter four terrific slashes, each of which was sufficient to cause death—Uzatis deliberatel butchered his aged benefactress, despite he piteous appeals for mercy and despairing of fers of all her money and valuables if only he would spare her life. He thrust his broad-bladed cimeter completely through her body, killing her on the spot, and then proceeded to plunder the corpse, while his accomplices broke open the trunks and rifled them of their valuable contents. Meanwhile, Ivanoff lay still, feigning death. He had received eight severe wounds, but, when the murderers made off with their booty, he contrived to crawl away, and, after incredible exertions, during which he lost so much blood that he repeatedly fainted, reached the Russian Consulate in Philippopolis about midnight, where he related the horrors of which he had been a witness. A detachment of cavalry was at once dispatched to Demendere, whither Uzatis had betaken himself, having previously returned to Philippopolis for the purpose of changing his clothes and concealing his weapons. He and one of his fellow-assassins were in the mill belonging to his brother when he perceived the militia squadron approaching. Forthwith they took horse and galloped off toward the Turkish frontier, but found the high road occupied by a section of infantry, the officer commanding which summoned them to surrender. Dismounting, they fled up a hillside and took refuge in a narrow glen, where they defended themselves for some minutes with their revolvers against the soldiers pursuing them. Presently, however, seeing himself surrounded on every side, Uzatis put the muzzle of his pistol in his mouth and blew out his brains. His companion was captured alive, as were later on the other three ruffians who had shared in his atrocious enterprise. The valise containing the stolen money has not as yet been discovered. Mme. Skobeleff's body, embalmed by order of the Russian Consul-General, will be conveyed to St. Petersburg via Constantinople and Odessa.

Delights of British Railway Travel.

[From the Edinburgh Courant, Aug. 2.]

Two gentlemen belonging to Glasgow, who had been to Belfast, were returning home by way of Stranraer and entered the train, leaving there shortly before eight o'clock. They traveled by themselves until they reached Ayr, when they were joined by a stalwart, gentlemanly-looking man, who proved to be a dangerous companion. Directly the train moved out of the station the new comer picked up a pipe belonging to one of the gentlemen and threw it out of the window. Although rather chagrined neither of the gentlemen said anything, wishing to avoid disturbance and believing that their companion was intoxicated. Soon the stranger began to punch them in the ribs with a stick, put himself into a menacing attitude, talked very incoherently and amused himself by knocking off their hats. The two gentlemen began to think that matters had proceeded just far enough, and one of them quietly informed the stranger that he had better desist, and that he might find, if he persisted in his "little game," that he had met his match. The train had passed Irvine and was flying onward, when suddenly the stranger produced from a stylish game-bag a six-chambered revolver of large size. He examined it for a minute or two and then drew the trigger once or twice, evidently just to satisfy himself that it was not loaded. The examination of the revolver concluded, the stranger laid it down beside him on the seat while he took from a case filled with ball-cartridges half a dozen to load the revolver. The stronger of the two gentlemen thought that his time for action had arrived and quietly picked up the revolver, ostensibly, with the object of looking at it; but when his excited fellow-traveler requested it to be returned his reques t was refused. Then a scene occurred in the compartment. The stranger rushed at the gentleman having possession of the revolver, knocked off his hat and endeavored forcibly to possess himself of the weapon. He failed and was then observed looking for a knife. He was then told that if he did not sit down and remain quiet he would be severely dealt with, and he contented himself with threatening what he would do till the train reached Johnstone. Here the gentleman handed the revolver to the guard of the train and informed an official of what had occurred, and stated that the man had as much powder in his possession as would wreck a train. The reply received was to the effect, "You are all alike to us and if it don't suit you you can change your carriage." This the two gentlemen did and went to Glasgow in another compartment, thinking themselves exceedingly fortunate in having escaped serious injury from one who had all the appearance of being a lunatic.

Mommsen's Burned Books.

[Correspondence London Times.]

I am in a position to give more details concerning the losses of literary treasures in the conflagration of Mommsen's library. Of the unedited inscriptions of the "Corpus Inscriptionum Latinarum," the addenda to volume x. (containing Lower Italy, West) are to be considered as destroyed. Greatly damaged are the "Instrumentum Domesticum" of volume ix. (Lower Italy, East), the Columnæ Militariæ" (Sicily and Sardinia) of volume x., the "Index Auctorum" of volumes ix. and x., and the Inscriptions of Helvetia of volume xiii. On the other hand, I am glad to be able say that volume viii., containing Africa (begun by Wilmanns and finished by Mommsen), remains intact. The four Jordanes MSS. of the libraries of Heidelberg (Palatinus 921, of which, however, collations fortunately exist), Berlin, Vienna and Breslau are destroyed. The critical text of Jordanes which Mommsen had prepared for publication in the Auctores Antiquissimi of the Monumenta Germaniæ is saved, as also the preface and account of the MSS. used by the editor. This standard edition of Jordanes will be some consolation for the destruction of the MSS. Not a single book of Mommsen's own library escaped the flames. I am told that his library was insured for 14,000 marks only. As to MSS. said to belong to the Vatican nothing is as yet certain. It would indeed be the first instance of the Vatican authorities allowing books to go out of their library. There is the same uncertainty respecting the Cambridge MS., which I am told now belongs to Trinity College. More lamentable than all those losses of books and MSS. is the destruction of Mommsen's own Collectanea and works still in MS.; among those, so far as my information goes, was Mommsen's MS. of "The History of the Empire," of which nearly three volumes were ready. I may mention also, as a curious circumstance, that Mommsen on the very morning of the fatal day (the 12th of July) was on the point of sending back all the MSS. which he had no longer occasion to use. This catastrophe, I hope, will be a warning to libraries not to lend out their MSS. except for use within the walls of other libraries. The Bodleian, for instance, which is very liberal in sending MSS. abroad, does it under the above-mentioned condition. Some other libraries, however (Leyden, for instance), are certainly too liberal when they intrust their MSS., not to an Embassador's courier, but to the officials of a parcels office. It would not be a bad idea to induce libraries to have some of their important MSS. photographed for the disposal of other libraries, and thus secure the text of a rare book from destruction.

He has left off drinking, dresses himself with scrupulous care and seems to desire to become a good citizen.

THE following communication from Mr. D. C. Diehl, of Hutchinson, Kansas, is of great importance to those situated as he was. He says: I suffered with Headache, Dizziness and pains all over the body. I was induced to use Hamburg Drops, the first bottle of which made me feel better; and after taking two bottles I was completely cured. My wife used the Hamburg Drops for palpitation of the heart and constipation with equally good success, and I shall always keep this wonderful medicine near me.

PERCHERON HORSES.

An Effort to Improve American Draft Stock.

[From the New York Tribune, 15th.]

The steamer Greece, which arrived last week, brought ninety-seven horses of the Percheron breed, for M. W. Dunham, an importer of horses, who lives at Wayne, Du Page county, Illinois. This is a small village about thirty miles west of Chicago. The horses were taken to stables on Greenwich street, and afterward sent West to Mr. Dunham's stock farm at Wayne. About one-fourth of them are colts, and the rest are full-grown stallions, their weight ranging from 1,400 to 2,000 pounds. This is the largest importation of horses of this kind ever made into this country. Mr. Dunham said to a Tribune reporter, while speaking of the importation of horses:

"William Harris, of Moorestown, N. J., brought the first Percheron stallions to this country in 1839. He was traveling in Europe for his health and saw some of these horses at work in France. He was so struck with their strength that he determined to bring some of them home with him. Accordingly he shipped four to this country. Two of them died, however, before they reached Moorestown. Charles Fullington, of Ohio, imported the next lot in 1851. In 1856 one of the stallions imported by Mr. Fullington was sent to Illinois, where for twelve years he was the only one of the kind in that State. In 1868 I imported two of these stallions, and in 1872 I went regularly into the business. Since that time I have brought over from France between 300 and 400 of them. I put them on my stock farm at Wayne and sell them whenever an opportunity occurs."

"How large a region is Perche, where you buy these horses?"

"The district which goes by the name of Perche is a plateau between the Seine and Loire Rivers, about 100 miles from Paris. The plateau is sixty miles in length and forty miles in width, and embraces parts of the districts Eure-et-Loir, Eure and Orne. The climate of the country is something like that of Vermont. The people live entirely by agriculture and by raising these horses. They are a people of wonderful industry and economy. My dealings with them during the last nine years have been very pleasant, although I have found them very sharp at bargaining."

"How often do you visit France?"

"Every year. I always go there during the last of June or the first of July. The greater part of the farm work is done then, and the horses are cheaper than at any other time of the year. Then, August is a good month to bring the horses over to this country, as the voyage is usually a quiet one, and as they acclimate better if brought over here just before the cool weather. All the horse-buyers go to Perche during the months of June and July, and the region is pretty well cleaned out of its horses now. If you were in Perche to-day you would have hard work to find a young first-class stallion in the whole district."

"What do these stallions cost there?"

"From $800 to $2,000. It also costs a great deal to import them. I had a special train from Perche to the sea coast, a thing never heard of before in France. In 1873 it cost me $500 for every horse I brought across the ocean. Now, however, when I bring them in large numbers, it costs only a little more than half as much for each. It will cost me $100 a car for my special train to Wayne. I put six of the horses in a car. I insure them when I start, and I have to pay four or five per cent on the insurance. When I sell these stallions, however, I will get from $1,500 to $3,000 each for them."

Winter Fashions.

[Lucy Hooper's Paris Letter.]

It is almost too warm to begin to think about winter fashions as yet, and still I think that my lady readers, even in August, will not be sorry to know what manner of bonnets they are destined to wear during the coming season. And the winter bonnets have already made their appearance, despite the doggedness of the dog-days. I regret to be obliged to state that the poke shape is the most generally shown, the form being modified at the back so as to fit closely over the wearer's back hair. Plush is to be the most fashionable material for bonnets and the favorite color will be a rich royal purple, which is sometimes called heliotrope; though no heliotrope that ever bloomed wore so brilliant a hue. Virot shows a very elegant bonnet in purple plush, of the poke shape. The plush covers the crown and back of the bonnet merely, and is arranged in an elegant torsade at one side. The brim is covered with full ruffles of Breton lace tacked down very closely. A bird of paradise is placed at one side of crown. Another novelty is in olive green velvet, and is almost precisely a reproduction of the Charlotte Corday cap. A bow of olive green satin ribbon is set in the front, which has a flat pleating of cream yellow tulle bordering the inside of the brim. A scarf of the same material, confined by a buckle in greenish-hued steel, is crossed at the back, the long, full ends serving as strings. Another bonnet showed a curious intermixture of dark, dull heliotrope velvet and olive green velvet. It was trimmed with plumes of the latter shade. Nearly all of the winter bonnets have scarf strings of surah, satin, or lace, ribbon strings being very seldom seen. In dress goods the newest shades are a reddish brown, known as copper color, a delicate hue of peige, or rather a pale shade of cafe-on-lait, and, most popular of all, the superb royal purple. This shade is so beautiful in itself, and universally becoming, that it is destined to wide popularity. Worth shows it in velvet for carriage and evening dresses, and its beauty in that material is truly regal. The new styles for dresses are hardly yet decided, but the combination of brocade and satin for full dress more than retains its popularity. Paniers in a new shirred form are just shown; they will be very trying in that style to any wearer with a stout figure.

Dangerous Stage Riding.

[From the Red Bluff Cause.]

The California and Oregon stage left Redding for Yreka on the arrival of the up train Wednesday evening with two passengers, a gentleman and a lady. At the top of the hill, about a quarter of a mile from the Sacramento ferry, the driver discovered that his brake would not hold, and, fastening the lines to the brake lever, he got down from the seat and knocked the right hand block out. The noise started the horses and they ran down the hill. The driver made a spring for the lines, but lost his footing and could not catch the two right-hand ones. This pulled the horses over the bank and down a steep precipice, carrying the stage and everything with them. The horses and coach rolled over two or three times while going down the hill, and when they came to the bottom were piled up in a shapeless mass, the lady still being buttoned to the seat by the heavy leather apron. She was fatally hurt. The man did not receive a scratch. The horses were badly bruised and the coach a total wreck.

Victoria in Uniform.

[From a London Letter.]

In the year 1840, Victoria, then a young Queen, rode out on horseback with her young husband by her side to review her troops in Windsor Park. She was attired in a military costume, with a riding habit made with broad collar turned back from the bosom, showing a little waistcoat of white pique with turquoise buttons. A high military stock of black silk supported her chin, above which not the smallest symptom of white collar was perceptible. On her head she wore a military cap with the wide-spreading crown, already indicative of the German influence which was so soon to penetrate every department of the royal life and preside over every other taste from the color of a ribbon to the choice of a Minister. The cap was of dark blue cloth, and had a burnished leather peak in front. Not a vestige of hair was seen about her forehead or down the side of her face, and but for the stray lock behind, just above the ear, she might have been taken for some young Woolwich cadet. The blue ribbon across her bosom and the brilliant star above gave a finish to a figure which would otherwise have appeared hard and coarse. The other day—exactly forty years had passed—the same Queen reviewed her troops again in that same Windsor Park; but had the same observer been there, he would have beheld, instead of the fresh young girl to whom even the stiff, hard collar and the peaked cap failed to give hardness of expression, a worn and grieved matronly lady, still mindful of the regret she had vowed for her departed love, clad, although not quite in widows' weeds, still in garments of such somber shape and hue that the observer was made to feel the sorrow by which the royal wearer was still borne down.

THE BIG BOUQUET.

A Fresh Craze Among the London Fashionables.

[London Cor. Philadelphia Times.]

Were it customary to associate London seasons with a patron goddess there can be little doubt as to the name with which the past season would be joined. Flora would by common consent be hailed as the social divinity of the year, and never has goddess been more devoutly worshipped. The chronicle of the season is traced, as it were, in flowers. Its feast days are marked, not with big, white stones, but with fragrant roses. Society has lived and moved and talked and walked and dined and danced well-nigh knee deep in sweet blossoms. The fashionable ball-room has rivaled the gardens by Bendemeir's stream; the upholsterer has been superseded by the florist, and the nurseryman has had the carte blanche which used to be given to the pastry cook. The floral mania probably reached its climax, at all events for the present season, at the "Rose ball," given last week, when a prosaic West End residence was transformed into a floral shrine, and the coup d'œil suggested "Lallah Rookh," the Bulbul and all the Persian fables which cluster round the queen of flowers.

But there is, alas! a prosaic side to the most picturesque matters, and society is just now agitated by a question which is most literally one of weighty importance to the fair sex. It is a well known fact that bouquets, keeping pace with the ever increasing craze for flowers, have been gradually growing in size until at last they have developed into positive burdens. The editors of the society journals are not quite agreed as to what are the largest dimensions attained this season by what we presume would be an unpardonable fault to call a "nosegay." It is a fact, however, that the diameter of the "largest on record" (of course it has been photographed), said to have been carried by a blonde, at the bachelors' ball, at Kensington House, is loosely spoken of as having reached the astonishing length of three feet. Now, after allowing for exaggeration, it must be admitted that this bouquet grievance is not a sentimental one. Ladies may very fairly complain of the unwieldiness of the floral tributes now placed in their hands, which, instead of adding to their attractions and furnishing them with a new weapon of fascination, must seriously embarrass even the most confident and self-contained. The execution that can be accomplished with a fan in skillful hands is well known, but it is hard to see what the most ingenious coquette could do with a cylinder of flowers the size of a cart-wheel and the weight of a big dog, at the very least. So far from being able to turn their big bouquets to good account our beauties are eagerly asking how they can carry them at all. Really, if they are not reduced in size, society will have to turn back to an old leaf again, and provide each demoiselle with a youthful page. And better so than that they should continue to cause the embarrassment to their fair owners which is now apparent.

Making Drunkards.

[From the New York Sun.]

The Meteor Club, ten young men in uniform, stopped at the Powder Pier at Fort Lee, on the Hudson River, yesterday, in the gig Comet. They had a quantity of clams and a keg of beer with them. After enjoying a rude picnic they turned the beer over to four little boys, the youngest of whom appeared to be about seven years old and the eldest twelve years. The children drank what was left in the keg, which, when distributed, afforded each of them about five glasses. The oarsmen of the Meteor Club took their keg and pulled away. The boys, who had been bathing and were nude, became crazed by the stimulant. They cried and fought on the pier, and falling heavily on the rough boards, cut their bodies. Two of them lost sensibility. After an hour three of them became sufficiently sober to prevent the youngest from throwing himself into the river. They dressed him and carried him away.

Good Wives in the Northwest.

[From the Olympia (W. T.) Transcript.]

Some farmers of Thurston county went east of the mountains last fall, leaving their wives to manage the farms. This spring these women put in the crop, attended to the stock, and may be seen driving their teams into town, marketing their products. One of the number is a young wife, who can be seen "slashing" down brush on her farm, and has by her own hands cleared some eight acres of land.

A woman living four miles north of Altona, Knox county, who attended the soldiers' reunion at Galesburg, had $2,000 which she was afraid to leave in the house during her absence for fear of it being stolen by tramps. She therefore put it in her pocket and the pickpockets captured it.

ALBERT G. MANN, of Cottage Home, Ill., says: I have been prostrated for three or more years with Kidney disease, at times I was not able to put on my boots, my wife has often pulled them on for me. I was not so bad as that all the time but I never knew what it was to be without a pain in my back until I commenced using Hunt's Remedy. Since I commenced to take Hunt's Remedy I have been free from all pain, and take pleasure in saying that it is the best medicine that I ever knew for kidney and liver diseases.

WAITING.

Thrice has she seen the blossoms fall,
And thrice the broods have southward flown,
And thrice in woodland, aisle and hall
The withered leaves and snows have blown;
Since 'neath the fretted skies of blue
They told their love and plighted true.

She sings his parting words of love
Out to the hush of winter skies,
And to the gloaming depths above
She lifts in faith her trusting eyes,
And with the balm and rose of June
She sings the same, her changeless tune.

Though lurid run the lines of light,
And distant seas stretch vast and dim,
Though darker drive the winds of night,
She ne'er shall doubt, but wait for him.
For God hath said some golden morn
Her love shall to her arms be borne.

GEORGE B. MIFFLIN.

RUSSIAN STATISTICS.

Death Rate Compared With Other Countries.

[From the New York Times.]

No trustworthy census of Russia has ever yet been taken, but the Journal de St. Petersbourg has recently added a valuable contribution to the scanty stock of information regarding its population by printing a series of tables on the authority of the Ministry of the Interior. To any objection that the figures are not very recent—they come down no later than 1870—it may be sufficient to reply that they are at once the best and first authoritatively made public. For the four years 1867-8-9-70 the average number of births in the fifty governments of European Russia was 3,163,000; of deaths, 2,382,000, and of marriages, 640,971. It thus appears that the natural growth of the population through the excess of births over deaths was 781,000, or 1.2 per cent of the total population of 64,681,000. At this rate the population would double in fifty-eight years, a result which it would require 68 years to reach in Germany and 165 in France. The birth-rate per 1,000 persons averaged 48.8, which is higher than in any other European country, Germany ranking next, (40.0,) England standing about midway, (35.4,) and France coming last, (25.8.) The percentage of illegitimate to total births is 2.92, the proportion for members of the Greek Church being 3.06; for Catholics, 3.17; for Protestants, 3.19, and for Jews and Mohammedans only 0.22 and 0.16 respectively. The comparison, if it is reliable, and nothing appears to the contrary, is not flattering to Christian morality. Comparing countries rather than religions, Russia does not suffer, for in England the rate of illegitimate births is 5.54, in France 7.35, in Germany 8.71, and in Austria 13.46. Taking the 70 most important Russian towns, the rate in them, as against the country, is nearly six times larger, or 14.89 for the cities and 2.37 for the villages. The proportion of male to female births is 104.8, as against 104 in England, 105 in Germany, 106 in Austria, and 107 in Italy. The death rate is higher in Russia than in the majority of European States, being 3.68 per 100, and the unenviable superiority is due chiefly to an excess of deaths among infants, of whom more than a quarter (26.34) die before completing their first year. The annual marriage rate is 9.8 per 1,000, a proportion which is only exceeded in Hungary (10.5), is about like Germany's (9.5), and far surpasses Ireland's (5.1). In the countries of Western Europe the proportion of men marrying under 20 ranges between 0.1 and 3.6 per cent., and of young women between 4.7 and 19.9 per cent. In Russia 37 men out of every 100, and 57 women of every 100 marry before 20, but the disproportion is to some extent corrected by a smaller percentage in later years. More widows and widowers remarry in Russia than in other European countries, and the proportion is higher among Catholics than among members of the Greek Church. In the case of Protestant, it is lower for widows and higher for widowers.

A Young Lady Wrecked by the New Waltz.

[From the New York Express, 14th.]

At Long Branch this season some of the waltzing is of the new kind, in which the dancers slide three times one way as fast and as far as their legs will let them, and then three times the opposite way. A couple divided against itself can not stand that kind of capering. The partners must slide, sway and whirl exactly in unison, or trouble comes. Take one recent instance for illustration: The young gentleman was brawny and demonstrative. He was up in the new waltz and eager for it. The young lady was tall, stately and sedate. She could not waltz in the new way, and deemed it an improper, agile and athletic diversion. The old style was plenty lively enough for her. But there was no such understanding between the two when they stood up together to dance. The new waltz begins without premonition, scooting off suddenly sideways, like a tremendously accelerated crab. Such was the initial movement of this young gentleman. Encircling the young lady firmly with his muscular right arm, and gripping her right hand with his left, he measured off about half the width of the parlor with three vigorous swings of his long, stalwart legs. It was a complete surprise to his partner. She was carried off her feet at first. Then her slippers beat a quick tattoo on the floor in her struggle to regain her equilibrium, and she hugged her partner desperately. The sweet smile on her face gave place to an expression of annoyance, and from that to terror. As for the young gentleman, he thought it was thus far all right. Away he went, three jumps in a contrary direction. She accompanied him, and in a dreadful manner. Her nose bored itself into his shoulder; her hair caught in a button of his coat, and was torn from its fastenings; a bouquet in her waist flew into many more pieces than it had flowers, and her Louis Quinze slippers scraped violently along the floor. She frantically clasped her hands back of the young gentleman's neck, and sank into his arms an utter wreck.

Tanner Explains.

[From the New York Herald, 15th.]

Dr. Tanner attended the lecture of Emma Hardinge Brittain, at Republican Hall, West Thirty-third street, yesterday morning. It was not known by the audience or the lecturer that he was present in the hall. Mrs. Brittain in closing her remarks on magnetism referred to the Doctor and the wonderful example he had given of the ascendancy of will over matter. She asserted that the density of population, the magnetic influence of the multitude, the aroma of food made his feat possible in this city, while if attempted in the keen air of the country and in solitude the body would soon be exhausted by the vigorous and consuming oxygen. At the close of her remarks a well-dressed, sharp-eyed man arose and obtained permission to address a question to the speaker, who introduced himself as the subject of the lady's remarks. All eyes were turned in surprise upon Dr. Tanner, who said, "If I had continued my fast in Clarendon Hall without the aid of the air in the park, for which I was willing to pay $6 a day, I could not have continued twenty days. Indeed, the bracing air of the Minnesota prairie made it possible for me to continue forty-two days once without food. My experiment in this city was attended with far greater difficulty; therefore my experience is not in accordance with your theory of magnetic forces."

Mrs. Brittain did not attempt to sustain her theory. The Doctor looked fresh and vigorous, and talked to many who surrounded him before he left the hall.

Cost of Spirits and Beer.

[From the Philadelphia Times.]

The profit on the sale of whisky by retail is enormous. There are in a barrel of whisky thirty-one gallons. At retail there are sixty-four drinks in a gallon, and 1,984 drinks in a barrel; cost per gallon, say $2.50. This makes the cost of thirty-one gallons $77.50, and 1,984 drinks at 10 cents a drink are $198.50. Deduct the cost, $77.50, and it leaves of profit for one barrel of whisky, $120.90. If a saloon-keeper can sell four barrels a month he receives $483.60, and for the year $5,803.20. Take out for expenses $1,500, and it leaves a net profit of $4,303.20.

For a barrel of ale of thirty-one gallons the cost is about $8. In a gallon the number of drinks will average eighteen, at 5 cents a drink; this is 90 cents a gallon, or $27.90 a barrel. Deduct the cost of beer, $8, and it leaves of profit $19.90 a barrel, or on the 11,000,000 of barrels, at 5 cents a glass for beer and ale, of $275,000,000.

The cost to the people of the United States for distilled and fermented liquors must be some $800,000,000 a year. This is an enormous sum for drink! And not a dollar of this vast expenditure adds anything to the physical, mental or moral well being of our family, but creates misery and evil beyond the power of any pen to describe or any imagination to conceive. And yet we have this fact to console us: There are not as much ardent spirits consumed now per capita as fifty years ago. The consumption of beer and ale is greater.

The Pool-Room Ruined Him.

[From the New York Times.]

Several days ago the firm of James A. Hearn & Son, dry goods dealers at No. 30 West Fourteenth street, reported to Inspector Byrnes that they were being robbed by some person in their employ. The thefts had been going on for two weeks. Detectives Cosgrove and Lanthier were placed in charge of the case. Their suspicions were directed toward John Gibbons, a young man employed as a parcel clerk in the delivery department. The detectives watched his movements for three days and discovered that he was spending money more lavishly than his salary and circumstances warranted. He was found to be paying attentions to a young woman of East Seventy-third street, to whom he had made some elegant presents. It was also learned that he was specially interested in horse-racing, and when he was found on Saturday purchasing pool-tickets on the Long Branch and Saratoga races the detectives arrested him. Gibbons confessed that he had been stealing from his employers for two weeks past. He admitted that he had stolen an elegant silk dress, valued at $150, made as a stage dress for a prominent actress in this city, and had pawned it in a Bowery pawnshop for $30. Among other articles stolen by Gibbons were two silk dolmans, worth $50 each; two cloth dolmans, worth $15 each, and three lace sacques, valued at $100, all of which he had pawned for one-fourth their value. Gibbons, whose parents are respectable people, residing in East Seventy-fifth street, were committed for examination in the Tombs Police Court yesterday. Gibbons has been employed as a "utility man" at a minor theater in this city, and was making arrangements to go West next week with a traveling theatrical company.

Emerson's Failing Health.

[From a Boston Letter.]

"Emerson is failing so rapidly," he resumed, meditatively, "it is very sad to see. The other day he came in here and said: 'Mr. Loring, I left my daughter Ellen's watch at some store here, right in this block, and now I can not find it. Would you mind now putting on your hat and going out with me to look?'

"I went with him and suggested that he describe how the shop looked to a jeweler near, who I thought would be able to recognize it. But he could not remember. All he could say was that it was a very pleasant man to whom he gave the watch.

"Finally, I took him to the place to which I thought it probable he had gone, and as we entered the man said:

"'Why, how do you do, Mr. Emerson, I have been wondering why you did not send for that watch.'

"And Mr. Emerson leaned over and whispered to me, 'Loring, don't you ever grow old.'

"It is the most pathetic thing to me," he resumed, 'to see that man whose words have shaped the thought of this country, and weighed greatly in all countries, to see him losing that beautiful fine equipoise.

"Yes," in reply to a question, "I do regard Emerson as far greater than Carlyle. Carlyle is erratic and incalculable. Of all the schools of philosophy that of Emerson is the fine perfection—the consummate flower."

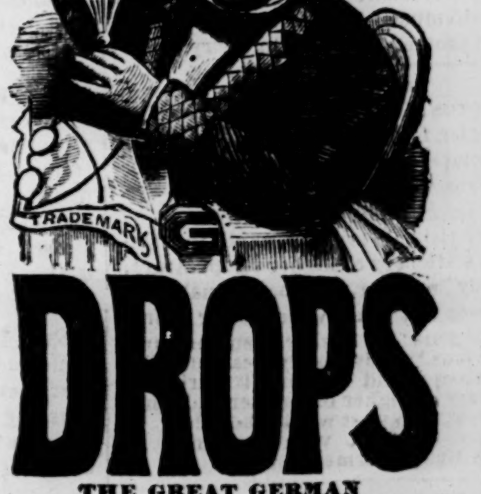

The Prince and the Gambler's Daughter.

[From the London Telegraph.]

It would appear that the vehement opposition offered by the Bonaparte family to the engagement contracted some months ago by Prince Roland Bonaparte and Mlle. Blanc, principal heiress to the enormous fortune amassed by the late high priest of rouge-et-noir, has proved fruitless, and that the wedding day of the happy pair is fixed for the 1st of October next. The mother of the future Princess has caused a splendid villa to be erected for the young couple in the Cascine of Florence, whither they will repair at the conclusion of their honeymoon. Prince Roland holds a commission in the Republican Army as Sub-Lieutenant of Artillery, and being totally destitute of private means, has hitherto contrived to live upon his pay, an achievement which speaks highly in his favor. By his marriage with Mlle. Blanc he will become the wealthiest scion of the House of Bonaparte; an eventuality contemplated with extreme disfavor by some among his illustrious kinsfolk who have hitherto persistently ignored the very existence of his mother, sister and himself. Prince Roland, however, whose conduct in adversity has been, according to all accounts, highly praiseworthy, may be deservedly congratulated upon having gained so magnificent a prize in the matrimonial market.

The Cambridge Chronicle figures up the agricultural products of Henry county last year at 9,300,000 bushels of grain, 84,000 bushels of vegetables, 53,000 bushels of fruit, 36,000,000 pounds of meat, 800,000 pounds of butter and cheese, 28,000 gallons of milk and cream and fifty-two bushels of castor oil beans.

J. P. SIMMS, in addition to other useful work, is building a handsome yawl for Capt. Crapster's new light-house steamer.

COL. W. E. MERRILL says the snag-boat E. A. Woodruff can't sink, and that the report of her sinking at Louisville was sensational.

THE Florence took two barges out yesterday for the Valley Barge Company. Her cylinders are 17 inches in diameter, 5 feet stroke.

THE Sam Roberts left yesterday for New Orleans with three barges and 75,000 bushels corn and wheat. She is one of McMunn's American line.

THE Annie Kelly and barges arrived from the Ohio. Shunk & Jenkins, general agents, have the Annie and barges, and will load them for the Ohio.

THE Phil. Chappel, Capt. Archie Bryan, arrived with 3,000 sacks grain. Shunk & Jenkins, general agents, send her out again to the Missouri this evening.

SIOUX CITY: Capt. Geo. L. Hughes, late clerk of the Gen. Terry, will take passage this morning on the Key West for St. Louis, where he will take a position in the Quartermaster's office.

THE probability is that Capt. Frank Liebke will take possession of the Charley Bowen No. 2 at Louisville to-day, and bring her here towing the hull of the steamer Alice, which he also purchased.

A RECENT communication from Yazoo City says: "The Board of Supervisors have $10,000 to build a bridge across Yazoo River at or near this point. The town is expected to pay the remaining $8,000 of the estimated cost of the bridge. No cotton worms reported."

IRONTON, O., 16: Capt. Solomon Wise, of Abbeville, Vermillion Parish, Louisiana, has contracted with the Newman Lumber Company for a stern-wheel cotton boat, 120 feet long, 20 feet beam, and 5 1-2 feet hold. The machinery will be secondhand, to be shipped from Louisiana.

MEMPHIS Appeal, 17: Pilots of the Cheek report a very rough river between this and Arkansas City. The worst place is opposite Austin, where the channel is chock full of snags. Why are not the snagboats at work all the way from St. Louis to Greenville? These ornaments to the western marine service should be put in glass cases to prevent the paint getting rubbed.

CAIRO Argus: The Oakland has four barges, and got to Greenfield's on Friday, but was drawing more water than was on the bar. She has been waiting for the channel to cut out, and we understand that there is now a good depth of water there. The channel has changed back to the old way, however, and is cutting the bank away rapidly at Greenfield's. It is also back to the old place at Bird's Point. The A. J. Baker got all her barges but one over the bar, and had to wait with that one until to-day. It, like the Oakland's barges, was drawing too much water.

CINCINNATI Enquirer: The meeting of steamboat owners of this port, called for yesterday, convened in the private office of Messrs. Semple, Cassily & Co. The object for which the meeting was called is the permanent organization of a local board of the steamboat captains and owners of this port, which shall have jurisdiction and supervision over superficial legal matters, the general interest and protection of its members. There was some discussion as to the necessity of organizing a local board, which resulted in the appointment of a committee of three, consisting of Messrs. John A. Williamson, David Gibson and J. D. Parker, to take the matter under advisement and report at the meeting called for Thursday morning.

AMUSEMENTS THIS EVENING.

UHRIG'S CAVE—Giroflé-Girofla.

THE great fire last night satisfactorily demonstrated that the hose used by our Fire Department is of a very inferior quality.

AN attempt was made to give an exhibition drill of the Templars at Chicago this morning, but the exhausted troops failed completely to satisfy the public.

THERE was a bit of a shindy at Dungannon, Ireland, last Sunday. They are evidently getting ready for some more exhibitions of prematureness over there.

A DISPATCH announces the death of the celebrated violin vertuoso, Ole Bull. He was seventy years of age. Death came to him among the hills of his native Norway.

THE amusement season is about to open. A call is out for a Republican Convention to be held in this city on the 15th of September to place a full State ticket in the field.

WHEN the Supreme Lodge of the World Knights of Pythias assembles in this city next week we must show the universe and the crowned heads of Europe how to take care of a crowd.

THERE is a concentrated attack on English, of Indiana, but no man with a "memorandy book" has turned up. For this reason the sympathies of Mr. Garfield have not been enlisted.

HON. JOHN L. PHILLIPS was renominated for Congress in the Seventh District, to-day, by acclamation. There was really no opposition. The popularity of Mr. P. precluded the possibility of anything of that kind. We congratulate the district.

OUR citizens should seriously consider the propriety of sending a delegation of fifty or a hundred physicians to Chicago to look after the sick and starving St. Louisans who were so unfortunate as to make a pleasure excursion to that wretched place.

SOME people are shocked by the intimation that "sugar" is sometimes used in advancing Democratic interests in St. Louis who calmly ignore the fact that a Republican whisky ring was started in St. Louis to raise funds to procure a second term of the Presidency for Grant.

So abnormal have been the revelations in the case of Gundecker vs. the Democratic Party of St. Louis that the great Republican leaders in Washington have stopped the forced assessments on the poor clerks. The fact that money is used to keep the political machine grinding has probably shocked the entire body of the American people.

A FULL report of Wade Hampton's Staunton speech, in which it is charged he declared that Hancock represented the same principles that Lee and Jackson fought for, is published in the New York Herald. No such language appears in it. The Radical organs which are using the Senator's incendiary remarks to scare up the brush-burners will not be troubled by the true version. They will hold that if Hampton didn't use the language attributed to him he thought it, anyhow.

AT the request of Mr. Hayes, the Sultan, though in extreme poverty, has decided to continue the Turkish legation at Washington. He abolished it a short time ago as a measure of economy; but Mr. Hayes misses the Oriental feature at his court. There is no more necessity for an embassy of this character than there is for an artificial ice factory at the northern extremity of Greenland; but Aristarchi and his Greek subordinates, who wear the stolen Phrygian cap of the Moslem on occasion, give color to the Diplomatic Corps and add picturesqueness to the cold-water receptions at the White House. Hence the solicitude of Mr. Hayes.

PROF. JOHN BUCHANAN, Dean of the famous doctor factory in Philadelphia which has been licensing quacks to murder for the last fifteen years, had the politeness and decency to jump off a Camden ferry-boat yesterday and drown himself. He had just been indicted for using the U. S. mails in furtherance of the interests of his fraudulent institution and conviction was a certainty. Buchanan had amassed a competence selling deplomas to fools at prices ranging from $10 to $25 and was indirectly the cause of a thousand murders a year. Charlatans with his bogus certificates are pretending to practice the curative art in every section of the habitable globe. Not one in ten can write a prescription or even "wrestle with the vernacular," as Slote would say. It is not likely that the disciples of the remorseful Dean will have the good sense to follow his worthy example, but it would be good policy for them to fold their parchments and quietly drop out of the ranks of the profession for a season. A medical diploma bearing the signature of Buchanan should entitle the holder to six months' board at the expense of the State.

THE SECOND DISTRICT.

The impression is sought to be created by an esteemed contemporary that the Second Congressional District is very doubtful—unless the particular choice of that contemporary be nominated. Of course this is the usual game of bluff. But how imbecile it is, and how stupid Democrats would be to be scared by such silly stuff, will appear more distinctly from the following official figures, showing the exact strength of the Democracy in the district as far back as 1872:

At that election the vote stood: Wells (Dem.), 8,268; Bryson (Rep.), 5,797—Democratic majority, 2,471.

In 1874 the vote stood: Wells (Dem.), 9,040; Fisher (Rep.), 3,597—Democratic majority, 5,443.

In 1876 there was a split in the Democratic party and Col. Slayback received nearly the entire Irish vote of the District. Still, with the two Democrats to divide the party, the vote stood as follows:

Wells (Dem.)	7,026
Slayback (Dem.)	3,329
Cole (Rep.)	7,316

Combined Democratic vote, 10,355, or a clear Democratic majority of 3,039 in the district.

In 1878 the bitter feud of two years before was still fresh and, Mr. Wells again being nominated, 2,391 Democratic votes were cast for John Hogan, who ran as a third, or Greenback candidate. We repeat that Mr. Hogan's vote was Democratic, as every sensible politician knows that the 2,391 Hogan votes were simply part of the 3,329 votes cast for Col. Slayback and against Mr. Wells in 1876. If the vote of Mr. Hogan is added to that of Mr. Wells the Democratic strength in '78 was 10,090, against 7,403 for Cole, or a majority of 2,687 even in '78.

If it is said that Mr. Wells' excellent services and personal strength drew to him Republican voters, there is the vote for President in 1876, which is the fairest test of party strength. It stood thus:

Tilden	10,077
Hayes	7,097
Democratic majority	2,980

This does not include the old Fourth Ward, which has since been added to the district, and which gave a majority of 211 for Tilden. Adding that to the above, Tilden's majority in the district was 3,191.

This year there is no split or bolt. Mr. Well sdeclines to run again. The natural increase of voters, the strength of Hancock and the tremendous pressure of the Presidential contest will bring out the fullest Democratic vote ever polled, and no doubt very considerably increase Tilden's majority of 3,191.

The man who thinks that Mr. Rosenblatt or any other Republican can be elected in this District is simply a political donkey. Mr. Rosenblatt's record is not of the kind to go to Congress on. His nomination would be very offensive to the Germans, all the Liberals, all the anti-Filley, anti-Grant, anti-machine Republicans. His slaughter would be overwhelming.

KNIGHT ERRANTRY.

There is a homely phrase in use among the boys attributing to the average human being a disposition to occasionally "bite off more than he can chaw." This is highly expressive of the attitude of Chicago in the matter of the Triennial Masonic Conclave. The city is literally "in hoc." The gallant Knights have found in the windy, lakeside hamlet an enemy more powerful than the cavorting Saracen on the plains of Palestine—wan hunger. With the Masonic brethren came a vast crowd of sight-seers, lured by cheap excursion rates. Three hundred thousand strangers poured into the city—a mere bagatelle for a city like St. Louis. The limited hotels were soon overtaxed and thirst and hunger ranged in the arid streets. Many small restaurants and eating-houses were compelled to close up because their waiters demanded an advance of wages, thus cutting off the victualing department of the army of occupation. These "beaneries," in ordinary times, had paid their employes Chinese wages and when the hour of prosperity came the skilled mechanics availed themselves of the harvest opportunity. Yesterday the grand parade of Knights, which was to have rivaled a French review at Longchamps, was rendered a ridiculous fizzle by reason of the exhausted and famished condition of the marching hosts. Hundreds of the gallant Knights had slept on the lake front or had wearily tramped the streets the night before. The morning brought them no refreshment. They besieged the hotels by brigades and divisions, but were turned away breakfastless. They were compelled to take position in line for the parade on empty stomachs. When the extraordinary march commenced the followers of the true cross were as gaunt as old Massena's troops after the defense of Genoa. What with heat and lack of food and sleep, they were soon overcome. At first they dropped out of line one at a time. Here and there a gallant Knight could be found lying, swearing by his halidome and denouncing the "losel churls" of Chicago, as picturesque and pathetic in his agony as though he were dying under the eye of Godfrey de Bouillon beneath the walls of Antioch. Anon platoons and companies began to break ranks. Musicians, who had neither tasted food nor ten cent beer for twelve hours, could no longer pump wind into their brassy instruments and stumbled wearily over the dusty, uneven streets in sullen silence—save that they swore like the invaders of Flanders. The grand pageant soon became a rout. Disappointed spectators, parched with heat and rendered mad by hunger, fought and wrangled and elbowed and fell down anathematizing Chicago. Scores of them were injured stepping off the high sidewalks and by the loose ends of the planks set in motion by the skurrying crowds. The droves of bunko-steerers and pickpockets, who constitute a large percentage of the population of the city, pillaged the helpless masses without compunction or mercy. In their exhausted condition they were a prey to every species of rapacity. Thousands of them were made sick by the stench of the Chicago River and stifled by the dust. The sun arose this morning upon a city stricken with misery. The limited capacity of the railways will be taxed to-day bringing away the misguided people who are able to be moved, and by night a sigh of relief will go up from the beleaguered city. But the survivor of this unhappy event will to his dying day warn his grandchildren against the supreme folly of going to Chicago in the dog-days on a pleasure excursion.

"Oh, the Emperor Nap he would set off
On a summer excursion to Moscow;
The fields were green, the skies were blue,
Morbleu! Parbleu!
What a pleasant excursion to Moscow!"

NERVOUS EXCITEMENT.

A great deal has been said about the excitement under which brokers and merchants habitually labor. They are understood to be a wild-eyed and cavernous-jawed class of men who are continually dropping from the heights of success to the abysses of misfortune and buoyantly rising out of the depths with equal facility. They are alleged to be persons whose hair becomes gray early and who burn out the vital fires after a brilliant conflagration of ten or a dozen years. There is some imagination in this idea and a spice of fiction. The average merchant in St. Louis steeps himself in sensation and, with every nerve-fibre in his body tingling and vibrating, rushes up to another trader, who is also boiling over with odic force. "What will you give for bacon shoulders?" says No. 1. "Three-fourths." "Make it seven-eighths?" "No." And then they both clasp their hands to their foreheads and stagger wretchedly apart to repeat this consuming dialogue with variations during all the exchange hours. Probably one of the queerest hallucinations under which these gentlemen live is that they are really going at a terrible rate and consuming untold quantities of oxygen over and above their proper share. They range themselves before the bulletin boards and tell each other stories of how other merchants have gone to the mad-house, while they get up a haggard and worn expression of countenance to justify the impression that they are traveling the same route. Figuratively speaking, they shed handfuls of hair over every click of the telegraphic instrument—they moult evermore. What these gentlemen would do if they were journalists it is impossible even to conceive. If they were hurried from a suicide's presence into a Congressional caucus, and back again to a Coroner's inquest over a railroad disaster, they might liven up a little; but, as it is, they absorb all the excitement going; they are always in the swirl of the vortex, and no enthusiasm is genuine to them unless it is over a market fluctuation of the fraction of a cent.

THE burning of the Yaeger Flouring Mills last night was a severe blow to St. Louis. The establishment represented a cash capital of over $400,000. It was the largest and best appointed mill in the West. The fates seem to be against Messrs. Yaeger & Crangle. This is the third time they have seen the magnificent product of their industry and genius leveled by fire. We are sure this calamity has not repressed their zeal, though they have certainly had more than a share of misfortune. Every citizen of St. Louis sympathizes with them and feels that the loss is one to be felt, if not shared, by all.

THE notorious burglar and desperado, Bill Rodifer, who was shot down in the house of a citizen of Indianapolis night before last, had been pardoned out of the penitentiary only about a month before. His entire career had been one of crime and outlawry, and yet he could find enough petitioners to influence the Governor to turn him out upon the world again. This is the fault of our system. Criminals are not dealt with and punished in this country as they are in the Old World. When a counterfeiter is caught in Europe he is salted away for twenty years. Here we turn them off with a five-year sentence. In the Old World thieves are not permitted to trouble the community after the second offense and there is a wholesome respect for justice. Rodifer, the worst criminal that Indiana ever produced, had the tender-hearted judge who sentenced him chief among the petitioners for his release. He was supposed to be a reformed man, but he commenced his old business before the smell of the prison was off his garments. It is some satisfaction to know that his career has been terminated and that he fell at the hand of "a young society man."

THE negroes of Audrain county, in this State, are to hold an agricultural fair at Mexico next month. The grounds of the white society are at their service. An exhibition of the fruits of colored husbandry and the arts of colored housewifery will tend to excite emulation among the brethren, but we regret to see this division of race. The constrast between a negro fair and a white fair will be very marked, for the freedmen lack advancement and opportunity. This contrast must serve to stimulate the prejudice which unfortunately exists and which ought to be lived down. It would be better if Sambo would pool his pumpkins and his yearling calves, his quilts and his loaf bread with his white neighbors and take his chances on hooking out a premium. A prize obtained in such competition would be worth something. Colored camp-meetings are good enough in their way, but we feel it our duty to frown upon colored fairs.

"SHALL the pauper section control the country?" shouts the Troy Times, as it prepares to prove by the figures of Nimmo that the Northern States are twenty times richer than those of the South. We are in favor of letting the section rule that can poll the most votes. There is no application of the Constitution that gives more power to a rich man's ballot in the box than a poor man's. The vote of the wealthy Massachusetts cotton-spinner is worth no more, under our system, than the vote of the poorest negro who hoes the cotton. This isn't Republican doctrine, but it's true, though.

MARSHAL BAZAINE, whose unsoldierly conduct at Metz brought such humiliation to the French arms in 1870 and '71, is doubtless dead. He was born in 1811. He grew up in the army, soldiered against the Carlists in Spain, fought in Algeria and in the Crimea and commanded the ill-fated expedition which went out to seat Maximilian upon the throne of Mexico. At the beginning of the Franco-Prussian war he was commander of the Imperial Guard. His surrender at Metz sent him out of the country in disgrace and his last years of exile were spent raising swine in Spain. His whole life, said a correspondent recently, "has been one long failure. His Mexican campaign was ridiculous. He knew nothing about the geography, the resources, the character of the country. The ex-Marshal would long ago have fallen into the most abject misery and degradation had it not been for his young wife, who has heroically devoted herself to him with an energy and persistence which can proceed only from real affection."

A POOR devil who helped himself to a few grapes from the vineyard of Mrs. Rivers, near Pittsburg, Pa., yesterday, was set upon by a gang of ruffians with dogs, driven into the Ohio and stoned until drowned. There was no politics in this affair. It was simply a matter of a few grapes and Pennsylvania enlightenment. If a negro had been shot under a Mississippi hen-roost, with a pullet in each pocket and a pair of laying hens in a bag, the whole Democratic party would be told for the thousandth time that the school-houses down there are so scarce that a crow has been known to die of exhaustion in attempting to fly from one to another.

AT last the Democrats of Okalona, Mississippi, have publicly denounced Will H. Kernan, the Ohio lunatic who used to edit a paper in their midst, as "a coward Radical emissary, drunkard and hireling," whose ferocious abuse of Northern people and sentiments was written to make Republican capital. The citizens of Okalona have been tardy. They should have repudiated this crazy enemy, who professed friendship in order to stab them, a year ago. Kernan is now in the pay of the Chicago Tribune, but his idiotic effusions no longer produce any sentiment but disgust.

ANDREW DRAYTON, an attache of Coup's Circus, while riding through the streets of a Virginia town, yesterday, in a cage of hyenas, was set upon by the ferocious animals and literally torn to shoe strings. The desire to see those hyenas now will be universal. This little episode, painful though it may be to surviving members of the Drayton family, will be worth $10,000 to the show.

CADET WHITTAKER, the colored gentleman who mysteriously outraged himself at West Point, has been granted a court martial by the Secretary of War and meantime has been turned out on furlough. He should be engaged to go about and exhibit his mutilated ear at Republican meetings.

JOYCE will write a book as soon as McDonald's work is digested by the public. He proposes to dump a lime-kiln of truth on it and deodorize it. It is to be hoped that he will mix better English with his lime than he employs when wooing the Muse.

THERE is a prevalent idea that beech trees are never struck by lightning, though why this tree should be a non-conductor more than any other would puzzle a naturalist to tell. James G. Blaine is the boss beech tree of the United States.

THE "first details" of Miss Neilson's death which were wafted by the French cable to the far West, and which are pointed at with pride by some people, turn out to have been wholly incorrect. Such details are very valuable.

THE wedding of Baroness Burdett-Coutts to young Bartlett has been postponed for a fortnight on account of the immaturity of the bride. She is only "going on" sixty-seven.

ST. LOUIS could have taken in the crowd that has foundered Chicago this week and maintained a composure equal to that of the cat that devoured the canary bird.

THIS delightful bit of genre weather seems to have been gotten up for the special benefit of robust citizens returning from the fashionable summer resorts.

IT was dropsy of the heart that carried off Miss Neilson, the actress, in the Bois de Boulogne, but it was agg ravated by an acute attack of indigestion.

OLD Tanner, the faster, would have been at home in Chicago this week.

PERSONAL.

—Herbert Spencer will come to the United States next year on a tour of the world.

—Don Carlos, the Spanish pretender, is having a hard time to support his wife and five children.

—One of the greatest elocutionists in London is said to be Clifford Harrison, son of the tenor once associated with Louisa Pyne.

—In its fashionable watering-place gossip, the Boston Traveller remarks: "Some women were evidently born to blush unseen, at least they are never seen to blush."

—Washington McLean, director of the Cincinnati Enquirer, is dangerously ill at Long Branch. All the members of his family have been summoned to his bedside.

—W. H. Smith, M. P., late first Lord of the English Admiralty, has bought a mansion in Grosvenor Place, London, for $195,000, and will polish up the handle of his big front door.

—Dr. Burnand, Tom Taylor's successor as editor of Punch, is described as "in the prime of life, very industrious, very ready, very funny, and—save when smarting under dramatic criticism—of equable temperament and judicial mind."

—A. S. Abell, whose connection with the Baltimore Sun dates from its day of publication, over forty years ago, celebrated his seventy-fourth anniversary last week. Mr. Abell is a puzzle to the temperance people. He drinks a quart of good whisky every day, and looks as fresh and rosy as a new baby.

—Manager Stetson, of Boston, has received a cablegram announcing that Salvini, the Italian tragedian, has signed a contract engaging to play five months in this country under Mr. Stetson's management, beginning November 29. He will be supported by an American company under the direction of Mr. L. R. Shewell.

—Gen. Grant during his nine days' trip in the Gunnison country proved himself an accomplished frontiersman. One day he rode a mule, and as he has some reputation for obstinacy himself, the incident afforded a hint for an "equestrian" statue. Another day he drove a mule team. He has not yet accepted the offered chief office in a mining company.

The Whisky Ring Disclosures.

[From the New York Sun.]

But is this story true? Can it be possible that Gen. Grant deliberately encouraged and protected this ring? We shall not express an opinion until we see the documents which McDonald professes to have in reserve. He is by his own confession a conspirator and a thief, who says he was abandoned by his accomplices, and is very anxious to unload some of his infamy upon other shoulders. His unsupported word is therefore of no value whatever. But it should be remembered that Grant's was the most corrupt administration ever known; that his present-taking and appointments to office in return were scarcely distinguishable from bribe-taking; that he was coarse and grasping; that the revenue officers implicated in the whisky frauds were in many instances his personal friends; that he stood by Babcock to the last; that he fought Bristow and Wilson bitterly; that he prostituted the machinery of the Department of Justice to prevent the conviction of the criminals at St. Louis, and that during his whole term of office rings as infamous as this were fostered and sheltered. But still the public will not believe that any President of the United States received thousand-dollar bills in cigar boxes and accepted horses and buggies as the undisguised proceeds of criminal operations, until the proof is made overwhelming. Meanwhile the friends of honest government will make no mistake if they resolve to turn out of power the party whose campaign funds were recruited from the proceeds of the whisky frauds, and elect Gen. Hancock, who broke up the military court of inquiry which was organized to take Babhock's case from the civil court in which he was arraigned at St. Louis.

Their Quarterings.

[From the Washington Republic.]

And now we are informed that Mr. Flood, the California millionaire, has purchased a magnificent cottage at Newport for the accommodation of the son of ex-President Grant and his bride to be, "over the portals of which the quarterings of the Grants and Floods are being engraved." This sounds very nice, but what are the "quarterings" of these distinguished families? Grant was a tanner and Flood was a barkeeper. If these mysterious emblems have any bearing on their origin the "quarterings" over the Newport door will be a sheep-pelt couchant and a corkscrew rampant.

Bristow in a Corner.

[From the Washington Post.]

Bold Ben Bristow says he won't make any speeches during this campaign. That wasn't the question that was asked him. Mr. Bristow was only required to say whether he would back up the statements of John McDonald, lately made public.

Of Course.

[From the Chicago Times.]

"When my term of office closes, I propose to go to my home in Ohio and settle down quietly," says President Hayes. And why not, to be sure? What else is to be done, unless the county clerkship or something is vacant?

PUBLIC OPINION.

Compromise Cars.

ST. LOUIS, August 17, 1880.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

To settle a dispute, please answer the following: What does the word "compromise" refer to when used upon freight cars?

J. P. D.

[It means that the wheels and trucks of these cars are constructed so as to run on tracks of different gauge.—ED. P.-D.]

Not the Man.

CLEARMONT, MO., August 15, 1880.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I had an argument with a certain Republican here the other day. He says that Barksdale, who killed Dixon, was a delegate to the Cincinnati Convention from Mississippi. Please inform us through the columns of your valuable paper whether that was the case or not. DEMOCRAT.

[The Barksdale who was a delegate to the Cincinnati Convention was not the Barksdale who killed Dixon. He was a much older man. —ED. P.-D.]

Work For Anthony Comstock.

ST. LOUIS, August 16, 1880.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A crusade against one form of obscene literature ought to be made by some paper in this city. I allude to those demoralizing sheets, the Police Gazette and the Police News et id amne genus, which are free of the mails apparently, and which do more harm to the young people of this city than all the smutty publications ever stopped by the Society for the Suppression of Vice. These illustrated papers, by suggestion and implication, familiarize the young with crime, and take away every vestige of innocence from their breasts. They take up a bogus tone of reproving vice, but if ever there was a shallow pretense in this world that is one of them. I am moved to this letter, Mr. Editor, by the fact that I saw on Saturday a girl of sixteen, whose parents I know well, and who are good, respectable people, enter a store on Franklin avenue, and buy a Police Gazette, a Police News, a New York Varieties and some other indecent publications. Can nothing be done to stop this thing? F. S. C.

A Question About Senator Cockrell.

HIGGINSVILLE, Lafayette Co., Mo., August 17, 1880.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

We have a controversy here as to how Senator Cockrell voted on the Eight to Seven electoral bill at the last Presidential count. Can you enlighten us?

A TILDEN DEMOCRAT.

[The files of the Congressional Record show that on January 24, 1877, the Electoral Commission Bill was ordered engrossed, put to a third reading and passed ayes 47, nays 17, absent 10. Mr. Cockrell voted with the ayes for the bill. After the action of the Commission was reported back to the Senate Mr. Cockrell seems to have taken little further interest in the matter. On the question of confirming the finding of the Commission awarding the vote of South Carolina to Mr. Hayes Mr. Cockrell was absent. On admitting the vote of Corliss, elector of Rhode Island, for Hayes he was again absent. On admitting the vote of Solace, elector of Vermont, for Hayes, he voted to confirm it, against Bogy, who voted no. On admitting the vote of Crossman, elector of Michigan, for Hayes, he again voted with the Republicans. On Florida and Louisiana he voted no.]

Gen. Churchill Not For Repudiation.

BEEBE, ARK., August 16, 1880.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In a recent issue of your most excellent daily you remark editorially that "Gen. Churchill, the Democratic candidate for Governor of Arkansas, is a warm advocate of repudiation." For once you are incorrect. The General is "tooth and toe-nail" against the adoption of the proposed constitutional amendment, and if that instrument means repudiation, as many believe, then it is but justice to the General to say that he is not "a warm advocate of repudiation."

Two years ago the Democratic party of the State recommended the adoption of the aforesaid amendment, and it is not a little remarkable that this year it has put a leader in the field who is and always has been opposed to the so-called repudiation measure.

This attitude of the party will cause thousands to "scratch" the head of the State ticket on the 6th of September next, and drive thousands of others to swell the vote of Parks, the Greenback candidate for Governor.

Many of our most prominent Democratic friends are even heard to express great doubts about the success of the ticket, while it is the opinion of others that it will come out ahead in the race, but by a smaller majority than at any election since the fall of the carpet-bag regime. The amendment will be adopted, it is thought, by a very small majority vote, and then, perhaps, "repudiation" will be the cry against us. S. J. C.

An Admirer of the Late Neilson.

ST. LOUIS, August 17

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

When I saw the headline "Gentle Juliet Dead," in your issue of Monday, I expected to read something which spoke of Neilson as the great actress, of her great merits and accomplishments on the stage, her matchless representations of such characters as she played, and of such other matters as can properly be said of a world-renowned actress, as Neilson was. But instead of that your article was largely devoted to a harsh attack on her private life, the details of which, in my judgment, neither a great paper like yours nor the public have anything to do with.

She acquired a brilliant reputation as an actress by dint of the hardest kind of work, the most painstaking application and the sincerest devotion to her calling. To be a really great actress, which she was, was the goal of her ambition. That she was a hard worker the most partial critic could not deny. That such a woman was the "shameless Pompadour" you paint her is hard to believe, and the assertion that "she preferred the dissipations of Monaco to the domestic life she was so well fitted to adorn" will find many dissenters, as also the one that "the career of a Camilla had more charms for her than the prosaic existence of a Fanny Kemble." But, supposing all you say about her private life be true; supposing all the countless lies that are and were circulated about her to be facts; admitting all the most improbable and exaggerated fabrications to be the truth—what business is that of the public? Neilson did not exhibit herself to the public as a model wife and the faultless woman; she did not go about preaching sermons on morality; she did not invite the judgment of the world on her behavior as a lady. She came before the public in the capacity of an actress and as such she should be judged. She electrified the people of two hemispheres by her phenomenal genius, not by her reputation as a woman. Nor has the succeeded in being considered the greatest delineator of her time of the characters in which she appeared by her incomparable beauty, as you intimate. Others have appeared on the stage who were beautiful, but have failed to be successful. Great as was Neilson's beauty, her genius, her accomplishments and ability were far greater, and these were the elements that contributed most to her brilliant and successful career. You say that "she did much to degrade her calling," and "that she has left nothing lasting." The former charge has been or can be brought against a large number of very great actresses, about whom the vilest stories are always circulated, and only too easily believed. To the second charge I can only reply that she has left as much that is lasting as any actress before her, and as much as any actress can leave. No, Mr. Editor, Neilson was a remarkably great actress and she will be remembered only as such. Her name is indissolubly connected with the representation of Juliet and Viola and Imogen and Rosalind, and as long as these characters shall be presented on the stage will her memory be cherished.

ADDITIONAL FOREIGN NEWS.

Turkey.

CONSTANTINOPLE, August 18.—The Porte has finally decided to cede Dulcigno to Montenegro. Abeddin Pasha, Minister of Foreign Affairs, says he hopes the transfer will be effected without great difficulty.

England.

THE EMPLOYEES' LIABILITY BILL.

In the House of Commons this afternoon the employers' liability bill passed its third reading without division.

THE CONNECTICUT DEMOCRATS.

The Campaign Issues in the East—American Freight on American Bottoms—The State Ticket.

NEW HAVEN, August 18.—Senator Eaton was elected permanent President of the Democratic State Convention. He referred to the Electoral Commission as "the greatest political crime of modern times," and appealed to Connecticut to set her broad seal of condemnation upon the fraud of '76. He had no faith in it (the expression was vociferously applauded). He congratulated himself that there was but one feeling in reference to it now. As he lived he believed Connecticut would give Hancock and English 5,000 majority. The Government should be taken out of the hands of those who had fraudulently retained it.

A HEAVY SAVING.

There would be a saving of at least $50,000,000 a year, and American bottoms would place in American pockets the $100,000,000 paid every year to foreigners for freight. It was the power over all that had brought prosperity John Sherman was not even a guide-post to refunding Government bonds at 4 per cent; he could do nothing except as ordered by a Democratic Congress.

THE TICKET.

James E. English, of New Haven, was nominated for Governor and telegraphed his acceptance. Chas. M. Pond, of Hartford, was nominated for Lieut.-Governor, S. S. Blake for Secretary of State, Merrick A. Mercy for Treasurer and Charles R. Fagan for Comptroller. Electors at large—Chas. R. Ingersoll, New Haven, and Loren P. Waldo, Hartford. First District—Richard W. Jarvis, Hartford. Second—Henry G. Hubbard, Middletown. Third—Chauncey F. Cleveland, Hampton. Fourth—D. N. Couch, Norwalk.

CHICAGO.

The Knight Templar Drill and the General Dead-Heading of the Crowd.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, August 18.—Defects in the management of the competitive drill exercises at the Jockey Club Park to-day, about equaling those which had caused such a disastrous break in the procession yesterday, made themselves apparent at an early hour this morning.

DEADHEADS.

Large crowds gathered at the gates of the park as early as 8 o'clock, and as no ticket-sellers or gate-keepers were in attendance, the crowd was spared the inconvenience and delay of buying tickets of admission. The trifling loss entailed through somebody's neglect of duty of course falls on the conclave management. Though advertised to begin at 9:30, it was nearly 12 when the drill commenced. It is improbable that any decisions or awards will be made until late this p. m. Thirty thousand people are in attendance, but are abominally provided for in the way of comforts or convenience.

THE ELEVATED RAILROAD.

Another Serious Accident in New York—No Loss of Life.

NEW YORK, August 18.—An accident which, if it had happened two minutes later or after the train had passed out of the depot yard, would certainly have been marked by the sacrifice of human life, occurred this morning on the Second Avenue Elevated Railroad at 126th street. It appears that the train which leaves the station at that point at 7:21 had left the station, and, as is usual with the trains starting from there, the trains were crossing from the east to the west track, when the rear car of train No. 602 was derailed and dragged about 150 feet along the track. After the car had left the track the rear truck snapped its fastenings and rolled from under the car, jumping to the street. The car fell upon the guard rails and the train was stopped as quickly as possible. Fortunately no person was injured, and travel over the road was delayed only four minutes. The damage will not exceed $200. The cause of the accident is unknown; but a thorough investigation, it is declared, will be instituted.

A Creak from the Kaw.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, MO., August 18.—The conflict between the Telephone Company and the city government will be settled at a Council meeting to-night. A compromise will be made. A proposition to put up the Gamewell Fire Alarm System will also be discussed. An exciting session is anticipated. Many property owners will be present at the deliberations and a lively time is expected on account of division of sentiment.

A Pennsylvania Messalina.

PHILADELPHIA, August 18.—Agnes C. Biddle, aged 14, a servant in the store of John Macy, provision dealer, was arrested last night on a charge of poisoning Mrs. Macy and two boarders by placing oxalic acid in their coffee. The physicians succeeded in counteracting the effects of the acid, but Mrs. May suffered intensely. The girl denies the crime, but admits having bought oxalic acid at a neighboring store.

Yellow Fever.

NEW YORK, August 18.—An official certificate gives the cause of the death of Hypolite Ribard, of Mobile, at Bellevue Hospital, as "Collapse from supposed yellow fever." The body has been taken to Sequins Point, Staten Island, Quarantine burial ground.

Bonds.

NEW YORK, August 18.—Proposals to sell bonds to the Government to-day aggregated $6,823,300. The Secretary of the Treasury accepted $2,500,000 at 102.45 for 6's of '80, 104.75 to 104.80 for 6's of '81 and 102.69 to 102.78 for 5's of '81.

The Colorado Way.

Alliger's Arrest.

NEW YORK, August 18.—The police are reticent about the arrest of Elijah Alliger, the broker. Superintendent Walling says the arrest is in connection with the disappearance of bonds of great value.

THE GUNDEKER SUIT.

Col. Cabell to be Committed for Contempt.

Depositions in the suit of Henry Gundeker against numerous members of the Democratic Central Committee were resumed at half-past 2. Col. E. C. Cabell's examination was continued from yesterday. Mr. A. R. Taylor conducted the examination. Col. Cabell acknowledged that he had been subpœnaed now. The date of the first meeting of the organization he attended was some time prior to the Cincinnati Convention. Could not recollect the exact date. The organization had no regular day for meeting. Usually they fixed the date of the next meeting before adjourning. Could not recollect the place of the first meeting. Think it was at Butler's house. Didn't think there were as many as twenty-five present. Thought the date of the meeting was subsequent to the Moberly Convention. Could not say how many meetings were held at Butler's."

Mr. Cabell declined to answer the question as to where the last place of meeting prior to the primaries was on the ground that it was immaterial.

Mr. A. R. Taylor replied that he did not want the witness to argue.

Finally Mr. Cabell said the meeting was held at Menne's Hall over a furniture store.

Mr. Taylor then asked how often he had met there. Mr. Cabell again declined to answer. Col. La Due stated that an answer had already been given to a similar question previously.

The notary read his stenographic notes.

Mr. Cabell still refused to answer the questions unless the notary decided so. The notary, while not passing upon the relevancy of the questions, said he thought the witness ought to answer them.

Mr. Cabell remarked he had attended three or four meetings. He was not certain as to the number. Col. Cabell was next asked which of the co-defendants had attended the meetings. He objected to state anything regarding other persons. He had never denied that he was a member of this organization, formed for advancing the interests of Col. Crittenden. Mr. Taylor pressed the question. Col. Cabell declined to answer.

Mr. Ed. McCarty said the matter rested with Mr. Cabell. He was informed by his counsel that he was not legally compelled to answer. The notary decided that an answer should be given. Col. Cabell, remarking that the questions were asked purely for a putrescent prurience and were immaterial, declined to answer. Mr. Taylor moved that witness be committed.

Notary Oldfield said he would commit.

Meanwhile a discussion is going on between the counsel as to whether other questions should be put to the witness before he was commited. Col. Cabell will probably be committed for contempt of court.

CATTLE—Grass cattle, native, Indian, Colorado, Texan and Southwest in liberal offerings the past week, but as regards quality not of the best; hence a glut was produced, and at the present writing, the close of our review, not over yet. The demand for fair to good and prime corn-fed steers was large, while the supply light, and this was a disappointment to shippers and exporters. Prices on good cattle ruled steady, and on common mixed very low. On Thursday, the opening day of our review, the run ongrass Texans was slow, and on common and medium prices were fully 10c per 100 lbs lower, and then very dull. Fair to good grass Texans in light supply and quiet. Grass Indian cattle scarce and wanted. Local speculators and a few interior shippers were the leading operators, they paying from $2 20@$3 ₩ 100 lbs in extremes. Common to fair native butcher cows in fair supply and also dull of disposal at unusually low prices. Stock cattle and feeding steers ditto. Fair to good native shipping steers in scant offerings, and the few droves of medium to fair sold early in the day at strong prices, namely from $4 10@4 50 ₩ 100 lbs. The shipping and export demand was quite large. Milch cows with calves in large supply and slow. Friday—Slow on fair native grades and dull on common and fair grass Texans. Offerings only moderate and the bulk again of the latter. Buyers were on hand, but all of them manifested indifference as regards operating, and there was but little activity. Some Eastern shippers and exporters were looking around and took the few droves of medium to fair native steers and paid from $4 10 to $4 50 per hundred lbs. They were not disappointed at the short supply from the fact that reports from New York and other points were not very flattering. Grass native cattle, like Texans, dull although a fair number of butcher cows found sale but at ruinous low prices, from $2@2 80 per 100 lbs. Saturday—The pens were deserted; a few buyers put in an appearance early in the morning, looked around and with this were satisfied and left. Offerings small and mainly tailings and remnants which were hard to work off even at bottom prices. Monday—There was a fair movement in fair to good native steers, and the moderate supply soon changed hands at steady prices, but common and fair light grass native steers were not wanted. There were no prime native steers offered. Eastern shippers and exporters were on hand, and they wanted a fair number of good and prime native steers, and had the offerings of these grades proved fair an active market would have ensued. Stock and feeding steers in light supply and demand. Grass Texans dead dull. Local and canning inquiry moderate and altogether for good Texans, while the bulk of the supply consisted of common mixed. Tuesday—Fair to good native steers were in active demand, and the supply was scant, and this proved a disappointment to shippers and exporters. The few droves offered found ready sale and brought strong prices. Grass native steers and mixed butchers' stuff in moderate supply and slow of disposal at very low prices. Native butcher cows in fair supply and dull. Grass Texan offerings quite liberal, the bulk again of common and inferior grades, which were dull and neglected. Wednesday, August 18, offerings fair, but the bulk again of grass cattle which was slow of disposal. The supply of fair to good native steers light, and holders asked strong prices therefor. There was a fair degree of activity and a large number of sales were made. Fair to prime native steers brought from $4 25@4 75 per 100 lbs. Good grass Texans and Indians in fair demand and light supply. Common in liberal offerings and dull at nominally low prices. Milch cows slow. Ruling quotations quiet.

HOGS—Prices were well maintained throughout and were satisfactory to sellers. Offerings fair but were inadequate to the wants of shippers and packers. The quality was good, there being but few grass hogs offered. On Thursday good and heavy hogs were scarce and 5@10c per 100 lbs higher. Packers and local butchers were very urgent in their demands and readily exhausted the moderate supply at the above advances. When mixed packing and heavy gave out they turned their attention to light shipping hogs. Shippers were a little cautious in their movements. Yorkers $4 95@5 85, mixed packing $4 90@5 20, heavy and fancy $5 25@5 45. Friday the supply was light and buyers entered the market early and readily bought what was offered and paid about the prices prevailing on the day previous. By 10 o'clock the pens were cleared. The prices paid were: Yorkers $4 90@5 05; mixed packers $4 90@5 15; heavy and select $5 20@$5 30; grass hogs $4 40@$4 65. Saturday supply barely enough to make a market. Demand fair notwithstanding it was the last day of the week. The few bunches offered found prompt disposal. Yorkers $5@$5 05; mixed packing $4 90@$5 15; heavy and select $5 20@$5 30. Monday offerings fair; over one hundred and twelve car loads, and bulk of fair to good shipping and packing hogs. All classes of buyers put in an appearance but held back and asked for concessions, which they obtained to the extent of 5@10c per 100 lbs. Later in the day there was a fair degree of freedom. Yorkers $4 90@5 00; mixed packing $4 95@5 10; heavy and select $5 10@5 25; grass hogs $4 40@4 60. Tuesday there was a little more firmness and the moderate supply was soon worked off. Yorkers brought $4 80@4 90, with the bulk of sales at $4 85. Mixed packing ranged from $4 90@5 10; butchers' and select $5 15@5 25. Gross hogs in light supply and limited demand at $4 40@4 65. Skips and culls scarce. By the hour of noon the supply had all changed hands. Wednesday—Supply only moderate and prices 5@10c per 100 lbs higher on light shipping grades. Shipping and packing demand quite urgent. Yorkers $4 85@4 95; mixed packing $4 90@5 15; heavy and select $5 20@5 30; grass hogs $4 40@4 65.

SHEEP—Fair to good mutton grades in light supply the past week and not enough to meet the local demand. Shippers were again ruled out of the market. Lambs scarce. Values firm:

Quote choice to extra $3 75 to $4; fair to good $3 25 to $3 75; medium to fair $3 to $3 25. Stock sheep $2 50@2 75. Scabby natives and Texas stockers not wanted. Lambs $1 50 to $3 per head.

Horses and Mules.

Offerings of horses and mules fair and of all grades. The demand from the different classes of buyers has fallen off somewhat, and business, as a result, was not so active. Common grades dull. Values quiet.

BEHIND THE FOOTLIGHTS.

The Opening Attractions at the Various Theaters.

Stars and Combinations Which Appear in September and October Next.

The regular dramatic season of 1880-81 will now shortly be inaugurated, and in less than a month the three first-class theaters, Olympic, Grand Opera-house and Pope's, and also the Pickwick—will be opened. During the summer these houses have all been refurbished and thoroughly renovated and cleaned. Managers Charles Spalding, John W. Norton and Charles Pope have been and still are in New York, where they have secured attractions for their respective houses. Mr. Pat Short will officiate as usual as treasurer of the Olympic, George McManus at the Opera-house and Ed. Zimmermann at Pope's. Mr. Richard [illegible] remains leader of the orchestra at Pope's while Charles Vogel assumes the direction of the Opera-house orchestra as well as that of the Olympic. These two houses will also be served in a scenic capacity by the trio of artists, Messrs. Noxon, Halley and Toomey, while Mr. Ernest Albert will be scenic artist at Pope's.

THE OLYMPIC.

The first theater to open will be the Olympic, which announces Monday, August 30th, as the initial night of the season. The season is to be opened here by Tony Pastor, who also played the inaugural engagement last year. Tony Pastor's present troupe consists of a double organization and its programme consists of musical, dramatic, minstrel and vaudeville specialties. Tony Pastor himself appears, and is the sole proprietor of the company. H. Sanderson is manager, and John Dingers business agent. On September the 6th, The Harrisons (Alice and Lon Harrison are underscored with their Musical Comedy Company, under the management of Martin W. Hanley. Alice Harrison has not been seen here since she appeared at the Olympic in Kiralfy's "Trip to the Moon," two years ago. She is considered the best soubrette burlesque actress in the country. Their programme consists of "Photos," by B. E. Woolf, the author of "The Mighty Dollar," "Millions," etc., and is entitled an original musical eccentric comedy. On the 13th of September Mackay & Sylvester Comedy Company are announced. Of course F. Mackay and Louise Sylvester are the stars. Their reportoire consists of "Freaks," which was first produced here last year at Pope's, and a new three-act musical comedy entitled "Our Flirtation," replete with amusing situations, popular melody, instrumental eccentricities and dancing. On the 20th Gus Williams is secured in "Our German Senator," in which he also appeared last season at the Olympic. Gus Williams will be followed by Mr. J. B. Polk, as Christopher Columbus Gall, in George H. Jessop's new comedy-drama "A Gentleman from Nevada," Mr. J. B. Pond is the manager. "All the Rage" party, a society comedy [illegible] Will Eaton comes next under management of Mr. J. M. Hill, late manager of Denman Thompson. This troupe comprises some excellent artists. The next attraction will be Robson and Crane. The company of these comedians consists of Messrs. A. S. Lipman, R. J. Dillon, John Marble, F. M. Burbeck and F. E. Ambrose, Miss Agnes Proctor, Miss Alice Gibson, Miss Nellie Boyd and Miss Mary [illegible]. Messrs. Thomas F. Shea and M. Whelan will attend to the business interests of the comedians. Their repertoire will include "Sharps and Flats" written for them by Slason Thompson—in which they met with great success last season, Joseph Bradford's "A. D. 1900" and Shakspeare's "Twelfth Night," in which Mr. Robson will play Sir Andrew Aguecheek, and Mr. Crane Toby Belch.

The Lone Stars in Bad Luck.

The Lone Star Base Ball Club of New Orleans, the members of which returned home Sunday night, thoroughly disgusted, played hard luck on their trip West. Out of thirty-six games the Stars scored only one or two victories. The last game played from home was had last Sunday with the Browns, which resulted in an inglorious defeat for the visitors. John J. Flynn, the manager of the Stars, who was defraying their expenses, soon discovered that he had undertaken a losing speculation, and when the receipts of last Sunday failed to balance the outlay Flynn concluded to get home. He left on Sunday night without notifying the club, who were stopping at the Everett House. Next morning, according to the statement of one of the members, they were hustled out of bed by the hotel people, and informed that they would have to leave the house unless some money was forthcoming. The boys were not allowed to take a clean shirt, and were forced to walk the streets, without any apparent signs of returning prosperity. Finally some friends came to the rescue and furnished the money to pay their bills.

AMUSEMENTS.

Uhrig's Cave.

This evening "Girofle-Girofla" will be given at Uhrig's Cave by the Corelli-Laurent opera troupe, the occasion being a complimentary benefit tendered to Manager John J. Collins. Mr. Collins has long been identified with St. Louis. For several seasons he was stage manager of the Olympic, and now fills the same onerous and difficult position for Mr. John McCullough. This is the second summer season that he has catered to the wants of the amusement-loving public. The present season has been peculiarly unfortunate in a financial sense, but Mr. Collins has remained boldly at the helm and after weeks of disheartening experience has steered his summer craft into smoother waters. His friends, and he has many of them, have tendered him this grand complimentary benefit to-night, and all those who have enjoyed the pleasant delight of the summer garden should attend this evening and give a rousing reception to the manager, who has stuck to the wheel throughout while more and less advantageous ventures have wrecked. Mr. Collins at a pecuniary loss resolved to keep his promise to the public and manfully bore the brunt of discouragements. A thorough gentleman, cultured and liberal, he is at the same time modest and unassuming in demeanor, and thus his benefit has not been heralded by the fanfarinade of a "public request" signed by eminent citizens and officials, and other, we suppose we must say, "legitimate" means of advertising a benefit. The fact has simply been announced, and if the public wish to patronize the garden on this occasion they may do so. Mr. Collins' course is so unusual, but at the same time such a manly one, that the public owe it to themselves to see that he does not lose by his modest behavior. No flourish of trumpets, no "we the undersigned, appreciating," etc, but a simple announcement such as should always be the case. Let Mr. Collins' benefit receive liberal patronage; he merits it for what he has done in introducing acceptable summer amusements; he deserves it for his straightforward manliness in merely announcing the benefit. Now let the public, who should recognize such a procedure, come forward and heartily and numerously endorse his course. In addition to "Girofle-Girofla" there will be extra attractions. Miss Flora Pike, an excellent vocalist, will appear.

PRACTICAL IMMIGRATION.

The Skilled Artisans Brought to Missouri by an Enterprising Company.

The Crystal Plate Glass Company is taking the initiative by importing what our great State imperiously needs, skilled artisans. A call at their city office elicited the following information from Mr. Charles W. Barnes, treasurer of that corporation. A couple of months ago Mr. George F. Neale, the efficient manager of the company's works, and, probably, the most capable glass-maker in this country, was detailed to visit England and select a qualified assistant manager and a full corps of capable, skilled hands, needed by them owing to the material enlargement of their works.

The first installment—twenty-one hale and hearty fellows—arrived this morning from New York by the O. and M., and proceeded at once to their destination. These will be followed in time by their families and further accessions to the operative force.

Twenty new dwellings have been erected for these operatives, and adequate funds for the erection of a Union Church—a want long felt—will be forthcoming soon, a good portion of the required amount having already been collected by Mr. Barnes.

The company has increased its plant and machinery enormously during the summer months—new Siemens' gas furnace and furnace hall and annealing ovens, cutting hall and warehouse 100x180 feet, and new boiler house with a pair of Galloway boilers made especially for them by the Edgemoor Iron Company, near Wilmington, Del. At the river the company has an incline, and coal and heavy supplies are hoisted by steam directly to the cars.

Their business has been, and is, immense, and has overtaxed them of late so that they have been obliged to refuse all further orders for early delivery.

Their glass is as fine as any made, and readily commands more than other manufactured in the country, as they adhere to the policy of maintaining the high standard of their goods.

Dropped Dead.

About 10 o'clock last night an unknown man, about 45 years of age, called at Cunningham's boarding-house, No. 513 Biddle street, and asked for lodging. He was shown a room and this morning after rising at 5:30 o'clock he walked out into the yard and shortly afterwards he dropped dead. The Coroner has been notified.

FLOWER MISSION.

The Meeting This Morning Well Attended and Successful.

Particulars of the Distribution at the City Hospitals—Arrangements for Future Gatherings, Etc.

The ladies of the Mission met in large numbers this morning at the headquarters. Many of those who have habitually attended were unavoidably absent to-day, but the places were filled up by new-comers, so that the loss of them was not noticeable in the numbers present, at least. Mr. Jackson, the efficient manager, was absent, and his place was ably filled by Mrs. J. H. Barnard, the president of the Mission, who performed the many duties devolving upon her in a way that was highly satisfactory. Among the ladies present this morning were Mrs. J. H. Barnard, Miss Jane Peck, Miss Lena Goff, Miss Ella Gardiner, Miss Jennie Cohen, Mrs. Clara Langdon, Mrs. Hugh Crawford, Miss Ewald and Miss Cleaver, who have attended nearly all the meetings of the Mission during the present season, many of them never being absent. The following new comers were present, influenced by Mr. Jackson's applications for assistance: Miss Russell, Miss Ferguson, Mrs. Sprague, Mrs. Ray, Mrs. Dodge, Miss Ada Evans. They rendered much assistance, and promised to be on hand at the succeeding gatherings.

The flowers were exceedingly numerous to-day, coming in from all sources, but principally from Webster Groves, as usual. The principal contributors from that place were: Willie Jackson 25 bouquets, Annie Brady 24, Stella Murphy 8, Mollie Murphy 8, Madie Anderson 2, Lulu Armstrong 2, Clara Bristol 5, Belle Helfenstein 22, Jennie Alcott 19, Mrs. Avery 25 Harper's Weeklies, Fincy Simmons 10 bouquets, Waverly Flower Mission 100, May Mills 20. The Sandoval, Ills., Flower Mission sent 25 bouquets, and Miss Carrie Nutting, of Carlinville, Illinois, 100. From this city, Mrs. Damon and Mrs. Gregg sent baskets of cut flowers and Mrs. Ray one basket of fine grapes.

THE FLOWERS WERE DISTRIBUTED this morning in the following manner: Miss Lena Goff took out her basket with forty bouquets to the Orphans' Home. St. Luke's Hospital received fifteen bouquets, carried by Miss Jennie Cohen. The Good Samaritan Hospital received fifty bouquets and one basket of grapes, from the committee consisting of Mrs. Dodge and Miss Bulkley. The Children's Hospital, twelve bouquets and one basket of grapes. Mrs. Hugh Crawford and Miss Ada Evans took charge of the Industrial Home, bringing out there forty bouquets and a large number of papers. There were fine floral offerings sent out to special cases of suffering in various parts of the city. The City Hospital was especially remembered this morning, 300 bouquets and 100 papers being sent out there in charge of Miss Jane Peck, Miss Ella Ferguson, Miss Russell and Miss Ewald. A POST-DISPATCH reporter accompanied the last delegation and witnessed a most interesting scene. The large committee in attendance allowed the ladies to more adequately attend to the work of distribution than on previous occasions. A visible brightness might be seen in the faces of the poor creatures in various phases of suffering. Many men and women unable to rise from their bed grasped the flowers and clasped them fondly, with that sort of expression which shows that they appreciate the fact that they are not forgotten. It looked very strange to see rough and weather-beaten men taking the bouquets in the same eager way that they would their discharge from the hospital, and, tempted by the smiling faces of the committee, they were soon deep in the narration of

THEIR HOPES AND WOES.

Many long and tedious stories were listened to with pleasant faces, and this little forbearance will perhaps brighten the life of many a sufferer for the rest of the week. Miss Russell and Miss Ewald, the new flower-distributors, were particularly noticeable for the way they entered into the spirit of the work, and the success with which they succeeded in pleasing what is so hard to please, whimsical invalids. Miss Peck has made this Wednesday visit a feature of the hospital, and Dr. Dean says that the amount of physical benefit derived from the weekly visitations is very evident to himself and his staff. Carriages were very abundant this morning, those used being furnished by Mrs. Hugh Crawford, Mrs. Russell, Mrs. Dodge and Mrs. Damon. The meeting altogether was one of the most successful of the season and the managers are loud in their appreciation of the efforts of the newspapers, especially the POST-DISPATCH, in putting their wants before the people.

The managers still ask that all those ladies willing to assist in the arrangement or distribution of the flowers call at the Life Insurance Building any Wednesday morning. They also repeat their request that ladies who can spare carriages for a few hours should address, any time during the week, Edward Jackson, Eagle Warehouse, 921 North Main street.

The Industrial Census.

Special Agent Gould and his assistants are far from through with their work. The schedules contain so many questions and inquiries and many of the manufacturers are for some reason unwilling to fill up the blanks so that it is almost certain the work can not be completed within the sixty days. Should this prove to be the case an application would be made at Washington for an extension of time. So far the returns show a remarkable increase over the industrial figures of 1870. Mr. Gould is hustling things up pretty lively and doing all in his power to get through the work within the allotted period. He is anxious to have the census completed as soon as possible.

St. Louisans at Green Lake.

The following people from St. Louis are guests at the Oakwood House, Green Lake, Wisconsin: D. D. Walker and family, Mrs. Beakey, Mrs. Ingram and daughter, W. H. Walker, M. M. Wheeler, W. H. Horner and wife, Mrs. Wm. Hyde, Mrs. S. G. Keely, J. M. Post, F. McGrath, J. Thomson, F. N. Johnson and wife, J. C. Ewald and family, Miss Ewald, Miss Belle Weisman, Jas. M. Franciscus and family, Miss Annie Sands, Miss Lizzie Sands, D. A. January, Jr., J. M. Berry and wife, David Block, Jr., Miss Laura Block, Miss Grace Block, also Mrs. Chas. B. Rohland, Alton, Ill.

A New Census.

If the authorities at Washington refuse to grant a complete recount to St. Louis, it is almost certain that a census will be taken at the expense of several public-spirited citizens. Many gentlemen are already talking over the matter, and some preparatory steps have been taken looking to an organization for this purpose.

A Modern Bill Penn.

[From the New York World.]

Joshua Jacob, a wealthy and influential citizen and member of the Society of Friends of Limerick, Ireland, landed in Philadelphia last Thursday with his family and servants and luggage. Several years ago, in the vaccination of his children, one of the elder was dangerously inoculated with the virus, and the father resolved solemnly and firmly that never again should any of his offspring undergo the ordeal of vaccination, the express law to the contrary notwithstanding. There is a penalty of £5 involved in a refusal to obey this law, and this the Government authorities enforced time and again. Jacob therefore resolved to emigrate, and about a year ago he purchased the old Jackson farm, in Harmony Valley, Pa. A most singular coincidence is found in connection with Jacob's purchase of the place. The original owner of the property was Isaac Jackson, a great-grandfather of Jacob's mother, though Jacob knew nothing about his relationship to the first owner of the farm when he went to buy it, knew nothing about the American branch of his family, and stumbled upon that section of Chester County thickly populated by a branch of his mother's family. In Jacob's family there are seven boys and four girls, and it was a funny, albeit pretty sight to see these lads all dressed in knee-breeches and gray stockings and broad-brimmed hats like their father. But quainter and queerer and prettier yet it was to see two of the little girls, one of whom was thirteen and the other nine, dressed in little Quaker bonnets, beneath which beamed the freshest faces, fringed with the brightest and prettiest chestnut hair, with a womanly part in the middle and a rigid provision against a very obvious tendency toward curling.

1880. A MODEL MODERN NEWSPAPER 1880.

THE POST-DISPATCH

Of St. Louis.

DAILY AND WEEKLY EDITIONS

Consolidation of Three Newspapers in One.

The Evening Dispatch,
The Evening Post,
The Evening Star.

LEADING EVENING PAPER of the WEST.

A Democratic Journal Devoted to the Interests of Missouri.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1880:

The POST-DISPATCH has been and will be a Newspaper in the true sense of the word. It owns the exclusive membership and franchise in the Associated Press. In is in constant telegraphic communion with all parts of the habitable Globe. Its Correspondents are at all the principal Fountains of News, and spare neither Money, Labor nor Brains to be the EARLIEST, the most COMPLETE and the most RELIABLE Historians of the Incidents and Accidents of the Day throughout the World. It will maintain its Excellent Record of being the Most Thorough and the Most Accurate Chronicle of the Local Happenings of St. Louis, enjoying, as it does, facilities for gathering information which are not shared by any other journal in the city.

Editorially it will continue to urge good, old-fashioned Democracy as the only Rational System of Government, and in the coming struggle between IMPERIALISM and FREE INSTITUTIONS it will be found at all times in the lead, fighting the Battle of the People beneath the Standard of Law, Liberty and Local Self-Government. Though Democratic, our Democracy is preceded by an allegiance to Truth and Honesty, and, once convinced that truth to itself or honesty to the public demand it, it has proved in the past that it will spare neither censure nor rebuke within or without the party when it deems them necessary. Its principles are tolerably familiar to the people of the State, as they have been repeatedly and frankly stated, and on every question from hard, sound Money to Western Improvements everybody knows that a definite position has been taken and held.

THE WEEKLY POST-DISPATCH.

The WEEKLY POST-DISPATCH has been established to be to Missour what the Daily is to St. Louis, and the manner in which it has been taken up—evidenced by the surest of all testimony, the subscription list—shows that a progressive, enterprising, live Newspaper can command success in itself, without adventitious aid, and with no recommendation except that of innate and superior merit. The WEEKLY POST-DISPATCH has already become an institution which Missourians cannot afford to do without, for, in the character of its news and the practical value of all its matter, it is almost a necessary household article to every farmer or merchant in the country. The markets are brought down to the very moment of going to press, just a day ahead of any morning contemporary, for, in the nature of things, a paper printed in the morning cannot contain as late news as a paper printed in the evening and going out by the same evening's mail. The importance of this one consideration, were there no other, would be enough to place the WEEKLY POST-DISPATCH far beyond any competitor, for a day's intelligence from a fluctuating market may save or make a business. The Weekly is specially edited to give a complete history of the week brought down to 4 o'clock of the day of issue, each subject having its carefully considered space, and its proper application to the business, the domestic, or the social wants of its readers.

The year of our Lord 1880 opens with a promise of solid prosperity, the like of which has not been known since the War. The piping times of Peace in all their fullness and plenty foster industry and enterprise in the land. Every wheel that turns, and every share that rolls the mellow loam up to the ripening sun, is driven by the sturdy arm of a citizen whose vote will be cast in this crisis-year either to make this happy promise a permanent reality of true popular self-government, or to see in its stead a sham Republic, with its attendants of a military, personal, centralized Government, eternal sectional strife and certain Mexicanization.

The POST-DISPATCH will appeal during the coming year to the conscience and patriotism of all true Americans who would keep the sacred and revered fires of Liberty alight to rally to its support during a season which will witness the bitterest and the most important Political Canvass which the American Republic has been yet called upon to enter.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

The POST-DISPATCH will be delivered by carriers to any part of the city or sent by mail, postage prepaid, to subscribers in any part of the Union, on the following terms:

Independent Foresters.

Col. Edwin S. Pike's legions of friends are prevailing upon him to have his name put forward for a second term as Supreme Chief Ranger of the World. This is conclusive evidence that the office seeks the man. No matter how great Col. Pike's inclinations might run in that direction, other duties call his official attention elsewhere, and for that as well as other reasons, after being a true, worthy and efficient officer of the order, he said in conversation with the secret order reporter of the POST-DISPATCH he would positively not permit his name to again go before the representatives of the Supreme Court for that honorable and important trust.

THE YAEGER MILLS.

Last Night's Blaze and Its Work.

Half a Million Dollars' Worth of Property Destroyed.

A Visit to the Ruins of the Mill and the Riding School.

The sudden tolling of the fire bells a few minutes after ten o'clock last night started the town into life and activity. Alarm followed alarm until the whole of the life and property saving machinery of the city and its entire floating population were streaming in the direction of the Yaeger mills. Little rivulets of men and women ran down side streets into the great thoroughfares, mixing with the larger streams, which in turn emptied themselves into the sea of humanity which surged and billowed about the burning buildings. The care of the crowd was the roaring flame which shot upward, towering dizzily hundreds of feet above the upturned faces, while all around on every hand thousands of people were under the queer fascination of a great fire. Every eye was watching the pyramids and streamers of bright crimson and the gay festoons of sparks. Everybody swayed backward and forward from time to time with the surging of the throng, and many a singular little incident served to divert the attention momentarily from the fire.

The crowd was made up of the very best people of the city, few of whom have lately had a conflagration brought so nearly to their doors. The streets leading to the mill were dotted with evening dresses and pretty faces and the ladies enjoyed the spectacle after the manner of the female mind, which takes an odd delight in seeing immense accidents and catastrophes, but which finds expression in words that indicate nothing but sympathy. Of course every lady at the fire last night was attended by one, two or several gentlemen, and if, in getting out of the way of a hose cart or a fuel wagon, there should happen to have been a little tender by-play, the excitement of the minute would excuse even a greater lapse from the conventionalities. Besides all were too much taken up with themselves and the fire to bother about their neighbors. A comparison of all the estimates made would show that there were 25,000 people in attendance last night and there is a strong chance that even this is an underestimate.

THE FIRE.

It will probably always be a mystery how the fire had its origin. One theory is that a journal was neglected and became overheated for lack of greasing and out of this grew the fire; another supposition is that the impalpable mill-stuff exploded as it did in the Washburn mill in Minneapolis. Of course there are other explanations in quantity and quality, all of them equally well founded, and all of them equally unreasonable. However, the fire started, in a few minutes the whole stately building was wrapped in flames from the ground floor to the roof, by the time the first engine arrived upon the ground, and it was evident to everybody that nothing could save the mill. The chief effort was devoted to confining the flames within the bounds they were already ravaging, and it was impossible wholly to do even this. The new Yaeger Mills were built after the burning of the Anchor Mills on Franklin avenue, owned by Mr. Yaeger, and they were constructed with a careful attention to every detail which could render them fire-proof and first-class. The building and its contents which last night dissolved in smoke were worth $400,000. The burnt region occupied the whole block bounded by Clark avenue, Mercer street, Poplar street and the Pacific Railroad siding, while the flames leaped over the western and northern boundaries of this block and ate into the rows of dwellings along Mercer and Clark avenue. The mill owned by Mr. Yaeger was originally located on Franklin avenue and while there was burnt two times. Unmerciful disaster seems to have followed the institution to its new quarters, and this mill, undoubtedly the finest in the city, is to-day a wreck and a monument to the power of the fire. The loss of the householders about the block beside the mill is estimated at $60,000 more, so that last night's blaze with its appendix at the Riding School will very nearly touch a half million dollars' loss. In the dwelling houses a great deal of furniture was saved, hundreds of willing hands helping the unlucky householders to get their furniture away. Most of the goods was left in the surrounding streets and alleys all night and in a state of inextricable confusion, and to-day the owners are experiencing the utmost difficulty in identifying and finding their property. A bedstead from one house, a book-case from another, a wash-stand from a third and a collection of chairs from all along the line form one pile, which is duplicated in a greater or less degree by every other pile in the street.

WHAT WAS BURNT.

Seven two-story dwellings on the north side of Mercer street, owned by J. Rhinehart and the St. Louis Building Association No. 1, were altogether gutted. The flames lapped over on them from the mill, and one roof after another dropped in silently. Rhinehart's own family occupied the north house of the row, No. 305.

The other dwellings were occupied as follows: No. 307 by A. Reeder; No. 309 by J. Payne; No. 311 by Jas. Kelly; No. 313 unoccupied; No. 315 by Wm. Nail, and No. 317, the northwest corner of Mercer and South Spring streets, by Herman H. Reiner, who used the first floor as a grocery and the second and third floors as a dwelling. The families estimated that they had each lost about $150 on broken furniture. The stock in Reiner's store was damaged about $1,000, and the contents of the bar-room were given away to the firemen and citizens who assisted in saving the row of buildings from total destruction. The house No. 2040 Clark avenue was one of the first to catch outside the mill proper. It was owned by Mrs. Hilman, and contained among other costly furniture a rather valuable private library. Five small houses belonging to Mrs. Margaret Walsh on Poplar street went up. A large grocery on Poplar also owned by Mrs. Walsh was scorched. On the east side of the mill twenty-five cars on the Pacific Railroad were destroyed before they could be dragged out by the locomotives.

A LEAP FOR LIFE

One of the employes of the mill, William Weinheimer, was in the third story when the fire broke out. He ran first to the window, but the dizzy height was too much for him and he made for the stairs. There he was met by a burst of flame which drove him back again to the window, out of which he incontinently jumped. He was picked up by the people below, and found to have broken both his legs above the ankle besides sustaining internal injuries. He was taken in an unconscious condition to Mrs. Godfrey's house, on Twenty-first and Cass avenue, and examined by Dr. Jones. He was then taken home to 1515 Geyer avenue, at his own request. Three other men were slightly injured, but none of them hurt badly enough to be kept from their work to-day.

The Riding School.

A brand from the burning mill fell on the roof of the Riding School, on Eighteenth and Pine, and before it could be put out or assistance obtained the whole great pine shell was wrapped in flames. Battery A was drilling when the first fire began and all of the men and officers went over to look at it.

Six mounted guns were in the Rink. Four of these were pulled out of the burning structure; the two others with their chests and all the battery equipments were destroyed. Among the property lost were thirty-two sets of harness. Lieut. Skipwith values the equipments at $2,000. The Light Guard Cavalry was also quartered at the Rink. But one horse was stabled there, and it was saved. Between thirty and forty saddles were rescued, while fifty-seven sets of side-arms, revolvers, sabers and accoutrements, locked up in cases, were destroyed. The Cavalry Company also lost their uniforms, which will be an individual loss to the members. All the armament destroyed belongs to the State, where the loss falls. The building, which was totally consumed, was the property of Charles L. Hunt. It was 120x300 feet, extending from Chestnut to Pine streets. A short time since Mr. Hunt purchased the structure, at forced sale, for $3,400.

To-day's Aspect of the Fire.

AT noon to-day a POST-DISPATCH reporter met Mr. Henry C. Yaeger, and asked him to state in round numbers what the loss on the mill was. "The insurance on the mill was not more than $200,000," he answered, "and the loss was over twice that much, $400,000."

"What is your theory of the fire."

"They tell me that one stone run empty, and broke, and that it set fire to the dry wood-work around it. The elevators distributed the fire so rapidly about the mill, however, that a man in the third story had to jump for his life, so any talk about the origin of the fire is simply wild. If twenty men with coal oil cans had gone into the mill to set it on fire they could not have done the work any more quickly than it was done."

"You mean to rebuild, I suppose?"

"Oh, yes, we will go to work again just as soon as it can be done. My friends have been more than kind to me, and they tell me to go ahead. We will certainly keep on trying, but this sort of thing is calculated to make a man lose his pluck. If the fire had happened sooner or later in the year it would not have been so awfully bad, but it caught us just when the market was in a better fix than it had been for twenty years; every puff of the engine was making money for us, and now look at it."

Mr. Yaeger's emotion was very painful, and the reporter hastily withdrew, assuring him that the sympathy of the whole town was with Mr. Crangle and himself in their common disaster.

VISITING THE RUINS,

The ruins of both the mill and the Riding School are still smoldering and a plug stream is flowing constantly on the ruins of the mill. Bent machinery, chipped and broken stones, twisted smokestacks and every other conceivable shapeless mass of iron litter the wrecked inside of the mill. Where the warehouse was, there is an immense mass of half-baked dough, and masses of broken brick are everywhere present. The buildings and the approaches are still very hot and Assistant Engineer Lindsay, of the Fire Department has two gangs of men at work. At the Riding School a couple of mokes are busy removing sabres and arms out of the shell. All of the arms which are recovered are in a very bad condition and will take long and hard work on the part of the armorer to fix them again. A large pile of sabers and a box of carbines and revolvers and an old spoiled helmet are all the loot left in the house.

Local Sporting Notes.

The St. Louis and Chicago cricket match was declared a draw on Monday on account of lack of time in which to finish it. The St. Louisans then departed for Milwaukee, where they will engage the crack eleven of that city.

The lively ball game at the Grand Avenue Park next Sunday, between the Reds and Browns, is attracting general attention, and an old time audience may be looked for. A number of small boys have been engaged to bring in the ball from the suburbs, where it will certainly be knocked.

Three very interesting races have been arranged for the Cote Brilliante track on next Saturday.

RIVER RATS.

A Band of Masked Men Attempt to Plunder a Wrecked Steamer.

One Pirate Killed—The Salvage Party Captured and Held by the Plunderers.

River pirates, it seems, have not yet been extirpated and continue to infest the banks of the Mississippi. Lately they have from continued immunity become bolder and now openly carry on their piratical depredating business, employing force and violence in attaining their purpose. The latest outrage has just been perpetrated at Ashport, Tennessee, where the steamer City of Vicksburg was sunk. Mr. R. W. Dugan, of St. Louis, organized and dispatched a wrecking boat to save as much of the cargo as possible. This morning he received a telegram from his agent, Mr. F. W. Bedard, at Ashport, informing him of an attempt by river pirates to plunder the steamer. As the City of Vicksburg sank it careened over on its side towards the bank, and thus the cargo is easily accessible. The watchman of the wreck was one James McMullen, and he was caught in collusion with outside parties in the act of stealing a skiff-load of the cargo. When the thieves were discovered they beat a retreat and one of them

WAS FIRED UPON

by some party unknown. He is supposed to have been badly hurt, but he jumped overboard and was lost. The recreant watchman, Jas. McMullen, was, however, captured. He was taken before a justice of the peace and had a hearing. The squire held him under bond of $1,000. The thieves did not leave their chum in the lurch, but boldly came to the rescue. A body of masked men rode into Ashport and rescued the caged watchman. They then attacked the wrecking boat and captured the salvage party. Mr. Bedard is kept under guard on the boat, while the two other men, Burriss Howard and Jones, were taken on shore and kept also under guard. It seems Howard is also suspected. Trouble is apprehended. Bedard is not allowed to move the boat, and the rest of the men are kept on shore.

GREAT EXCITEMENT PREVAILS

and people are coming into Ashport and gathering around the boat. Some of them are very violent in their threats and the masked band feel encouraged. The latest news was that the Sheriff had just arrived at Ashport, and it was hoped he would be able to quell the disturbance.

Some steps should certainly be taken to prevent such audacious river marauding. River piracy ought to be crushed out at once, as the interests of the great waterway are important to the development of commerce. If such outrages can occur, the various littoral States should appoint or commission certain parties with authority to act in such cases as the one just cited. Nobody did anything until the arrival of the Sheriff, and that official and the inhabitants of Ashport have behaved excellently. They have done their utmost to quell the disturbance and put down the marauders. But it is time that the State authorities attended to the matter of protecting the river interests and this outrage should accelerate such an end.

RAILROAD RUMBLE.

M. K. Elliot, master of transportation of the Vandalia, is in the city.

The traveling auditor of the L. N., R. S. Lukeville, arrived in the city last night.

Arkansas and Louisiana are leading all other Southern States in railroad enterprise.

The Keokuk and St. Louis Road has removed into the new office, No. 104 North Fourth street.

There are now 3,000 men at work on the Canada Pacific, which is being pushed forward as rapidly as possible.

The Chicago and Alton sent out fifty-five passenger coaches and sold 2,300 tickets in St. Louis to Chicago excursionists.

Andrew Donaldson, paymaster of the Ohio and Mississippi, is paying the employes of the road in St. Louis to-day. Donaldson's visit is one of the pleasant experiences in life of the boys.

The dearth of news in railway circles is attributable to the fact that all the roads are doing a good business, and the officials and employes are, consequently, kept too busy to furnish items of interest.

The committee appointed by the subscribers to the freight certificates of the Burlington, Monmouth and Illinois River Railroad have reported that they do not consider the security offered by the road sufficient. This will not affect the road, which is rapidly nearing completion, but will cause subscribers to be more cautious, and therefore the builders will be compelled to so manage matters as to insure the redemption of the certificates.

Local railway circles do not seem to be much affected by the reported probable combination of roads running south, especially those tapping Louisiana and Texas. It is thought, however, that Jay Gould, Tom Scott and other members of the syndicate are endeavoring to obtain control of the roads. Some of them have already been secured, and it is possible the Iron Mountain will join the great chain.

East St. Louis.

The City Court-room is being renovated. A set of workmen are employed repapering the room.

A council is set for 5 p. m. to-day. No pressing business is on hand, and an adjournment will probably be had.

Yesterday afternoon ex-Deputy Tom Edwards arrested a boy named Andrew J. Denny, who is wanted in St. Louis county by a farmer.

Coroner Bader this morning held an inquest on the body of William Dulahaulylying, who died last night at Patrick Fitzpatrick's boarding-house of hemorrhage of the lungs.

Last night a set of new double harness was stolen from the stable of the Allen Brothers' farm at Monk's mine, seven miles from East St. Louis, on the Collinsville plank road. The property is valued at $40. No clue to the thieves.

The funeral of John Green, who died Monday night from injuries received by a collision of freight cars in the yard of the Wabash Company, took place Tuesday at 4 p. m., Rev. S. H. Hyde officiating. The deceased came from Warwickshire, England, twenty-four years since, and leaves a widow and married daughter, now residing in St. Louis.

THE EXTREME HEAT.

This the Hottest Day of the Summer.

The heat of to-day is but an intensification of that of yesterday, and were it not that the extreme caloric is tempered at intervals by a cooling breeze, life in the streets would be insufferable. Yesterday was a warm day, but the thermometer at the Signal Service office to-day showed an average increase of temperature of three degrees. At noon to-day the sheltered thermometer showed 95°, which would argue a heat of fully 100° by 4 o'clock this afternoon. Aloe's thermometer at the corner of Fourth and Olive, which gives the temperature experienced by pedestrians, was up to 98° at noon, and the thermometer still showed an upward tendency. Sergeant Weber, at the United States Signal Service station, says that there is no prospect of relief for a day or two, for in every direction the reports show clear weather and high temperature. People whose business calls them out of doors must be cautious. Only a few cases of prostration have been reported, but if there is no improvement in the weather a repetition of the scenes of 1878 and 1879 may be looked for. Every arrangement has been made at the Dispensary for the care of victims of the sun.

LOCAL POLITICS.

Notes and Announcements—Politics at Carondelet.

The extreme warm weather seems to exercise a most depressing influence upon the politicians. They were absent this morning from their usual haunts. The ward meetings last evening were all broken up by the fires. To-night the Republicans will hold precinct meetings to organize their wards. On Friday night another meeting of the Hancock Union Veteran League will be held at Gen. Gooding's office, in the Jaccard Building. On Saturday night the Democratic City Committee meets at headquarters, No. 112 N. Fourth street.

Carondelet Politics.

There was quite an enthusiastic meeting of Democrats held in Carondelet last night, at which a Hancock Club was formed, about seventy-five members being already enrolled. Peter O'Brien was elected president; Ed. T. Lawler, secretary, and Thos. Brennan, sergeant-at-arms. A room has been rented of Chas. C. Weiss for the future meetings of the club.

The following with regard to the voting precincts will be found of interest, being in accordance with the latest division as shown by the new city map soon to be published:

District 224.—Bounded on the north by Elwood street and Wilmington Road, south by Comas street.

225—Between Kansas and Pine streets.
226—Pine to Vine and Kirk.
227—Vine and Kirk to Tesson and Motier.
228—Tesson and Main on the south and east.
229—Tesson and Motier on the south and west.

These boundaries will be observed in the Republican primaries to-night, as well as regular voting precincts in the future.

CORONER'S INQUEST.

Another Witness Examined in the Vail Homicide, but Nothing New Elicited.

The Coroner's jury, composed of Ben. Godin, M. J. Walsh, Hermann Hauss, B. Long, foreman, Frank Kolf and James Harney, reassembled at 10:30 o'clock this morning in the City Court room. Much time was consumed in cross-questioning the witnesses and reading the testimony, which one of the jurymen said was not being taken down with sufficient accuracy. The dispute was settled by the clerk, who read the testimony several times.

JACOB FRANKE

was the first witness called. He testified that he first met Vail on last Sunday in a saloon on Missouri avenue, near Main street, and was with him until 10 p. m., when he went to Tremaine's saloon, where Vail arrived shortly after. He appeared to be under the influence of liquor. He was attending a game of pool and at 1 o'clock he dozed off, when he was aroused by the first shot. Behind the bar he saw Tremaine and his wife and Vail struggling. The parties in the saloon ran out the rear door and he ran to the sidewalk through the front door. His testimony closely corresponded with the statements of other eye witnesses already published.

Mr. Launce, attorney for Tremaine and his wife, stated that Tremaine did not desire to make any statement to the jury, as he expected that the testimony of other witnesses would be sufficient to place the affair properly before the jury. The jury took a recess at noon.

CARONDELET JOTTINGS.

Mr. John Walsh received an order yesterday from G. S. Walker at Bismark, to procure for the Hancock Club at that place, a flag which will be thrown to the breeze from the top of a pole 90 feet high.

Captain Kennett was taken much worse again yesterday at the station, and was taken home. This morning he was resting quietly and feeling considerably better. He will probably take warning from his experience of yesterday, and not venture out again until stronger. He is suffering from malarial fever.

Klausmann's cave presented a brilliant scene last, night being the festival given by the Carondelet Gymnastic Society. A very large crowd was in attendance, and an unusually large number from the city favored Carondelet with their presence. The different committees had everything so well arranged that the occasion was a very pleasant one throughtout.

Second District Police Court.

Twenty-six cases were called in this court to-day and seven cases continued. Cases against Mollie Jones alias Maude Bates, Chas. Fischer, Mike Connelly and William Miller were nolle pros'ed. For disturbing the peace the following fines were imposed: Hermann Heide, P. Kelly, W. McDermott, Mary Crefford, Louisa O'Leary, E. J. Rowell, $5 each. Charles Fischer was fined $15 in another case. Annie Fleming was fined $10. Kate Rowen prosecuted Mary Morrisey a few days ago, but the defendant was cleared by Mr. Powers. To-day that attorney was on hand to prosecute Kate Rowen. She was fined $10 by default. Peter Connolly was discharged. Mary Connolly was assessed $10 on a charge of being drunk. Four prisoners were sent to the Work-house.
